

SCISSORS UNISEX SALON

Following the trend of their generation today Frank and Elaine Muia have opened their Scissors Unisex, a hair dressing salon in Schreiber, a small place where their income may be smaller than in a larger centre, but friends are within walking distance and outdoor recreation but a few minutes from one's home, and the cost of belonging to any sport association a very nominal one.

Frank is considered a native of the town since he was brought here by his parents when he was six months old, from Italy, growing up and receiving his early education in Schreiber.

After working some months in a Beauty Salon in town, Frank decided hairdressing was his forte, and took a course, after which he worked in Joseph's in Toronto and then went on to Victoria, B.C. where he met his wife, an English girl, their marriage taking place two months ago.

Elaine is a 'city girl' but after Frank explained the advantages of living in a small place, and owning their own business, she was persuaded, and whole-heartedly entered the venture.

Fortunately, for Frank, Elaine is also a hairdresser. And their customers are rather enjoying the experience, for both men and women, of having their hair cut and styled at the same time. A First in Schreiber.
