area, which will also become a terminus for railway pulpwood shipments to Terrace Bay.

The overall woodlands expansion will create 525 new jobs, bringing total woodlands employment to 1,155 by late 1977, while the enlarged pulp mill at Terrace Bay will provide jobs for an additional 150 people. Current mill employment is 650.

To accommodate in part the increase in the company's work force, Kimberly-Clark will spend $6 million on housing facilities in Nakina, Longlac and Terrace Bay. In addition, it will also guarantee housing loans for employees who wish to build their own homes in all communities.

NORTHERN LIGHTS FOLK FESTIVAL

Each summer Northern Ontario sports its very own folk festival. It features all kinds of folk music and crafts with an accent on Northern talent. Over the past four years Northern Lights has grown to equal the standards and audiences of Mariposa, Carlisle and the Winnipeg Folk Festival. So far it has remained free of admission, unlike the others.

This summer the festival will be held in Bell Park, Sudbury on July 4, 5 and 6. For those three days from morning to night there will be musical workshops, concerts and craft demonstrations. There will be about twenty-one craft booths at the site exhibiting such things as macrame, glassblowing, guitar making, quilting, leatherwork, etc. Three stages of music will occur simultaneously. There will also be an open stage for anyone who wants to perform. The workshops demand audience participation and are a great chance to learn by playing, talking or listening to some of the best.

Talent for this year's festival include such people as Jim Eaves, Robert Paquette, Valdy, Watson and Reynolds, Luke Bigson, Stringband, The Great Sneezy Waters, Dave Essig, Colleen Peterson, Paul Dunn, etc. Thunder Bay talent at the festival includes the Earthshine Bluegrass Band, Rodney Brown, and Dennis Themens. The list goes on and on.

So, check it out. Plan to spend a weekend in the sun (hopefully), with good people, music and crafts, July 4, 5, and 6, in Sudbury.
