Your roving reporter spent a few hours one day last week going around the Townsite looking over the new projects and if you don't think that Terrace Bay is coming into its own, all you have to do is go and take a look-see. The new Community Church is well into the advanced stages and certainly will be an asset to the Community when completed. The new hospital is nearing completion in leaps and bounds and if the present pace is kept up, it should be completed before the end of October. The new sub-division west of the Hotel is making fast progress with some of the new houses already painted with their first coat. The new streets are well under way with the installation of sewage, water and Hydro.
