The students covered 2,200 miles in 7 days and all agreed that the journey was most valuable educationally.

Defensive Driving: The Ministry of Transportation and Communications has introduced a system of classification of drivers' licences relating skills to the type of vehicle driven. Effective the first of September 1977, school bus drivers will require an E-type licence and teachers will also need an E-type licence to drive a 10-24 passenger vehicle. It is hoped that courses will be run between now and the end of August for those who require these new licences.

NORTHERN AFFAIRS

BY JIM TRISTRAM

The Ministry of Consumer and Commercial Relations administer the Gasoline Handling Act.

The Gasoline Handling Act, has now been amended to require that commencing Jan. 1976, metal portable containers will be governed by the same requirement as plastic portable containers and may only have gasoline or naphtha placed in them if they bear the label of the Underwriters Laboratories of Canada (ULC) or of the Canadian Standards Association (CSA)

This simplifies control by the service station operator because now if you ask to have gasoline put into a container of metal or plastic it must be CSA or ULC approved or it will not be filled. A service station operator who puts gasoline into a customer's non-labeled container is breaking the law and is liable for a heavy fine. So, all old metal gasoline cans that do not have these CSA or ULC labels are now illegal. To many snowmobilers, boaters, motorcyclists, etc., this will mean purchasing new containers. This law is intended to promote more safe handling of gasoline in small quantities which has been an area of much concern due to the number of accidents over the years.

This law is now being enforced by the Energy Branch of the Ministry of Consumer and Commercial Relations.
