

LAKEHEAD SCHOOL OF HOCKEY

There's always room for change. After eight successful seasons, the Lakehead School of Hockey isn't sitting back and resting on its laurels.

An entire new program has been devised. This program will see drastic changes in both the skating and on-ice instruction. The new method in skating all but promises an improvement in the skating of every hockey player registered in the two-week summer program, even if they've had hundreds of hours in skating instruction previously. The second hour which gives on-ice instruction, will see more emphasis placed on individual instruction, going into much more detail than in any of the eight previous years of operation for the school. The third hour is instructional scrimmage, a time set aside to review what was learned in the earlier two hours and to put it to use in actual game conditions. Special video-tape analysis will be made throughout the two-week period during the scrimmage and replayed the following day during the classroom session. This proved popular a couple of years back when Dave Siciliano commentated and was able to bring out many of the good and bad points, which the players were able to see and correct more readily.
