CB CHANNEL 9 FOR EMERGENCY USE ONLY

OTTAWA, December 21, 1978 -- The Department of Communications advises that General Radio Service Channel 9 may now be used for radiocommunications that concern only the immediate protection of lives or property. According to previous regulation, channel 9 could be used for both emergency and general calls.

During the past year, GRS users and organizations have asked that channel 9 be used for emergency communications only. As a result, the Department published in the Canada Gazette Part II, Vol. 112, No. 23 an amendment to the General Radio Regulations, Part II.

Because of the change, another channel will have to be used as a calling channel. The Department published a Notice in November 18 Canada Gazette asking for comments on the need for or the desirability of designating channel 11 as the new calling channel. A decision concerning this designation will be made later.
