Women's health project gets grant

The Health Promotion Directorate of Health and Welfare, Canada has granted $230,619.00 to the Northwestern Ontario Women's Health Education Project for its next two years of operation. The Project will use the funds to deliver six health-related workshops to women in fifteen communities throughout Northwestern Ontario.

The first series of workshops will focus on Women and Nutrition. It will run from September to November, 1983. In mid-winter, Cabin Fever II, a workshop on stress and coping with small town life is scheduled. A menopause workshop is planned for April-May 1984. Finally, a training session will be held in June, 1984 for regional women interested in learning how to deliver workshops.

In 1984-85, tentative plans include a conference on Women and Health as well as travelling workshops on women's cancer, patient rights and preventative health care.

During its first year of operation (1982-83), the health project conducted a Cabin Fever workshop and an extensive survey of regional women. The survey asked women about their health status and what types of workshops they would be interested in attending. The workshops that are being developed reflect these women's wishes.

Overfilled propane vehicles dangerous

Propane filling station operators and attendants in Ontario are being warned of the dangers of overfilling propane-vehicle fuel tanks in a letter from the Fuels Safety Branch of the Ontario Ministry of Consumer and Commercial Relations.

The warning follows reports that automatic stop-fill valves installed in some vehicles do not work properly. The letter stresses the importance of using the fixed liquid level fuel gauge - a compulsory system installed in every propane vehicle.

Before starting to fill a vehicle attendants, who hold a certificate issued by the Fuels Safety Branch must open the outlet valve of the liquid level fuel gauge. When liquid propane starts coming out of the valve, the tank is filled to maximum capacity and fuelling should be stopped immediately.

The Propane Code, under the Energy Act, states that a propane tank should not be filled above the 80-per cent level. An overfilled tank is a serious fire hazard. Propane needs room to expand if it is heated, and without the 20 per cent expansion space liquid propane can be released outside the vehicle through the pressure relief valve. Escaped propane can be set off by the smallest spark.

Fuels Safety Branch Director, John Patterson, warns that overfilling propane tanks is illegal and dangerous. "Drivers who ask an attendant to ignore the fuel gauge and pump a few more litres into the tank risk losing their vehicle, home or life," he says. "It's not a fair exchange for a few extra kilometres between fuelling stops."

Mr. Patterson also warns that an attendant who is convicted of overfilling a tank is liable to a fine of up to $10,000, one year in jail or both.

IN MEMORIAM

WEBER: In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Del, who passed away August 24, 1982. Memories are treasures That no one can steal.

Death is a heartache

That no one can heal.
Some may forget you.
Now you are gone.
But we will remember
No matter how long.

Sadly missed and lovingly remembered by wife Maybelle, children Carol, D'Arcy, Cathy and Patrick.
