A Dog's Prayer

author unknown

Treat me kindly, my beloved master, for no heart in all the world is more grateful for kindness than mine. Do not break my spirit with a stick, for though I should lick your hand between the blows, your patience and understanding will more quickly teach me the things you would have me do. Speak to me often, for your voice is the world's sweetest music, as you must know by the fierce wagging of my tail when your footsteps fall upon my waiting ear.

When it is cold and wet please take me inside, for I am a domesticated animal, no longer used to bitter elements, and I ask no greater glory than the privilege of sitting at your feet beside the hearth, though had you no home I should prefer to follow you through the ice and snow, rather than rest upon the softest pillow in the warmest home in all the land.

Keep my pan filled with fresh water for although I should not reproach you were it dry, I cannot tell you when I suffer thirst.

Feed me clean food, that I may stay well to romp and play and do your bidding to walk by your side, stand very welling and able to protect you with my life, should your life be in danger.

And master, when I am very old, if the Great Master sees fit to deprive me of my health and sight, do not turn me away from you; rather treat my trusting life gently, and I shall leave you, knowing with the last breath I draw my fate was always softest in your hands.

Probationary drivers have fewer accidents

According to a recent preliminary study carried out by the M.T.C., probationary drivers have fewer accidents.

Ontario's probationary driver system came into effect on June 1st, 1981. The year-long study compared ministry driving records of drivers licensed four months before, and four months after the new system came into effect. A more detailed analysis was done for drivers licensed in May of '81 compared to drivers licensed under the new system in June of '81. The study indicated probationary drivers had approximately nine per cent fewer accidents and 14 per cent fewer offences. That represents 100 fewer accidents and 430 fewer offences per 10,000 drivers.

The study noted that although the overall trend was toward a lower number of accidents and offences, some groups showed more positive results than others. "Approximately 200,000 new drivers are licensed in Ontario every year. We introduced the probationary system to counteract the high rates of accidents
