Parish Healing Mission planned

To celebrate the Special Holy Year of Redemption, St. Martin of Tours Church, Terrace Bay; is having a Parish Healing Mission from Sunday, January 22 to Thursday, January 26 inclusive. The theme of the Mission is "Healing of Hearts."

The Mission will be given by the team of Fr. Carl Schmidt, CSSr., a Redemptorist Missionary, and Mrs. Bea Brisbois, R.N., wife and mother, Public Health Nurse and Psychiatric Nurse for the past ten years. Both team members are from Windsor, Ontario, and are members of the Association of Christian Therapists.

The entire Mission is built in and around the Mass and the Sacrament of Reconciliation, Preaching and Healing Prayer.

All the services will be held at 7:00 p.m. with Mass each evening. On Sunday evening, instead of Mass, there will be Exposition of the Blessed Sacrament, Homily, Healing Prayers and Benediction. The Blessed Sacrament will be exposed for voluntary adoration and intercessory prayer Monday to Thursday from 2-4 p.m. Private prayer and counselling will be provided by the team personnel.

All are welcome!

Koshowski Triplets honoured

Michael and Carol Koshowski, proud parents of Terrace Bay's historic triplets Karli, Krystal and Kristine, received a six-month supply of Kleenex Huggies disposable diapers from Kimberly-Clark President, Walter Groman. Groman imported the K.C. product from the United States for this special occasion, and they expect to be producing diapers in Canada by this fall. Carol is the daughter of Mary Clare and Joe Kennedy, a former employee of Kimberly-Clark here in Terrace Bay.

For safety and savings, keep tire pressure up

by DIANA POOKE
Under-inflated tires can cost you a small fortune. They could also cost you your life. Surveys show that most car owners keep their tires at a lower pressure than recommended by car and tire manufacturers. A Shell Canada spot check of 250 cars showed that the most common problem, which occurred in almost half the cars checked, was under-inflated tires.

Running a car with tire pressures lower than recommended is not only potentially dangerous but is also costly. Underinflated tires take more power to make them roll. This increased rolling resistance significantly increases gasoline consumption. If tire pressures are only 10 percent below the recommended level, then the gasoline bill will increase by two percent. If pressures are allowed to be as much as 20 percent too low, and they often are, then the gasoline bill will increase by five percent. Under-inflated tires also wear out more quickly. A tire that's under-inflated can lose one-fifth of its useful life.

On the other hand, if tire pressures are too high, although there will be slightly beneficial effect on the gasoline bill, it will be at the expense of road grip and safety. With over-inflated tires, a car's handling characteristics may change completely. For long journeys on fast roads, tire pressures can be increased slightly. The correct amount of the increase is shown in your car owner's handbook. But again, do not over-inflate tires as it could adversely affect handling and be dangerous.

The type of tire on your car affects fuel economy. When the time comes to buy tires, consider radials. Radial tires give better gasoline economy than bias-ply tires because they offer less rolling resistance. Radials will reduce fuel consumption by 3.5-6 per cent. In addition, bias-ply tires will wear more quickly and need to be replaced after approximately 40,000 km as compared with the expected 60-70,000 km life of a radial tire.

For those who have radials, the "radial bulge" can disguise a tire that is under-inflated. Use a good quality tire pressure gauge to check your radials. Check all tire pressures at least once a month at your service station. It costs nothing, it saves money, and it may save your life.

Correct me if I'm wrong

Just a note to say that I'm living
That I'm not among the dead;
Though I'm getting more forgetful
And more mixed up in the head.

For sometimes I can't remember
When I stand at the foot of the stairs
If I must go up for something
Or, I've just come down from there.

And before the fridge so often
My poor mind is filled with doubt;
Have I just put food away, or
Have I come to take some out!

And there's times when it is dark out
With my nightcap on my head,
I don't know if I'm retiring
Or just getting out of bed.

So, if it's my turn to write to you
There's no need in getting sore.
I may think that I have written
And don't want to be a bore.

So remember ... I do love you,
And I wish that you were here.
But now it's nearly mail time
So I must say goodbye, dear.

There I stood beside the mailbox,
With a face so very red.
Instead of mailing you my letter,
I had opened it instead!
