Katimavik to Plant over 400,000 Trees

Ontario's forests will be richer by more than 400,000 trees by May 31st, thanks to Katimavik, Canada's national volunteer youth programme.

The massive planting is Katimavik's contribution to National Forest Week, May 6-

12th, and an important element in the organization's on-going "Tree Project." The project emphasizes outreach and public education on the value and significance of the forest environment for Canada, along with silviculture (tree planting).

The activities have been designed to highlight the contribution each Canadian can make to reforestation.

Planting has already begun in most parts of Ontario and work should be completed by the end of May. Katimavik, which has 800 participants working in dozens of communities across Ontario, will engage in both large and small scale projects.

In the Northwestern Ontario District 25,000 trees are slated for the Red Lake area, M.N.R. public displays and the treatment of trees to help prevent Dutch Elm disease are scheduled for Katimavik participants in Thunder Bay.

Katimavik, Canada's volunteer youth service programme, provides young people between the ages of 17 and 21 with the opportunity to further their own personal development while providing a volunteer service to Canadian communities. The programme, funded by the Dept. of the Secretary of State, this year will grow to more than 5,000 participants working in 430 communities across Canada. By August of this year, Ontario will host 133 of those projects with about 1,600 participants province-wide.

From its beginning, Katimavik has chosen to put its objective of increased environmental awareness for young people into practice by taking part in forestry related activities whenever possible.

Participation in the "Tree Project" also allows participants to meet Katimavik's objectives of personal development, service to Canadian communities and understanding of the country.

A young resident of Terrace Bay, Paul Barry, joined Katimavik about a month and a half ago. He has kept the "NEWS" posted on his success with the programme and he will be writing to us about this fine organization in the very near future.
