

Linda Trapp at work at her largest loom.

Beat the winter doldrums

Come out to the Terrace Bay Recreation Center Multi-Purpose room to view a unique and striking exhibition of work produced by two very talented and enterprising area women. Susan Johnson-Hewson is well known in the area for her outstanding photography of nature themes. Linda Trapp, although unknown to many, has spent the last few years since graduating from a weaving course, practicing and working diligently in this craft. She now feels confident in progressing to a more personal genre of weaving, especially tapestries and free form. Coming from a background of artistic creativity, Linda has always had a desire to find her own personal medium. Faced with the realities of employment for women in this area, Linda decided to utilize her artistic bent as a way of furthering her education. A year at Humber College in cinematography did not give her the hands-on experience she desired. As she tells it, one morning she woke up and said, "I want to be a weaver." Though she had never seen a loom in her life she contacted the Canada Craft Council to find a suitable place to take this type of course. She spent two years at Georgian College in Barrie studying weaving and textiles. Concentrating on weaving she also studied spinning, silk screening and stained glass techniques. She graduated with her diploma in 1980. The past five years have continued on page 11
