suppose it's because I kept it in a pot in the house over its second winter, til June 10th this summer? We dug it up again last week, put it in a larger pot, and brought it into the house. When writing to special friends, I like to snip a sprig of rosemary and staple it to the top of the letterhead - makes a nice conversation piece.

In the fruit department: strawberries, three-quarters of a cup; raspberries, two small servings enjoyed with honey and yogurt; red currants, for the birds - literally. Black currants were good but scanty.

So goodbye garden for 1985. I sure hope I never see another like it, but as long as the old knees hold out, I'll try again in 1986!
