

Terrace Bay Rec Centre still a beehive of activity

Terrace Bay Recreation News, for the week of March 19, 1986:

The Recreation Centre was a beehive of activity during the March Break Activities with approximately 20 participants taking part in the Bowling Sessions held on Monday. Tuesday saw an exciting Ping Pong Challenge for students from the ages of six to 16 years old. The most proficient in the 6 to 9 year group were Josie Ray and Kelley Rennette. The age group of 10 to 15 years, saw Mitch Bolduc and Shane Jowitt being the most capable of all the players. Unfortunately we could not entice any 16 year olds and older participants to take part.

Wednesday, the students participated in racquetball instructions for ages 10 to 15 years in the morning with a small mini tournament being held in the afternoon. These activities were held under the able instructions of Warren Sutherland. At the time of this writing, the racquetball activities for the 16 year and up group had not taken place. More news on this event will be forthcoming next week plus results of the 10 to 15 years tournament.

Racquetball Tournament:

The Racquetball Tournament is still underway and hopefully we will have a news report on the winners of this event for next week's issue. We wish to remind anyone interested in learning the game of either squash or racquetball to contact the Recreation Office and free instructions will be given.

Attention:

Are you missing any hats, mitts, work clothes, runners, gym bags etc. etc. etc.? Try our lost and found box in the office.

Programs:

Most of the programs due to begin during this Winter and spring schedule have already commenced. We wish to draw your attention to a few of the programs which require more registration.

Drying Plants:

(Eleanor Gould)
May 3 is the date set for this one day seminar, which will show the participant how to dry and care for different plants to be used later for decorating purposes. You will also be shown how to make a Pot Pourri. Times for the seminar are 10 a.m. to 12 noon and 1 to 4 p.m.

Introduction to Flower Arranging:
(Eleanor Gould)

The first session of this program is totally booked but there is a possibility of having another session. If you are interested in learning this beautiful art of arranging silk flowers into a creative masterpiece give the Recreation Centre a call today.

General Makeup:

(Aggie Iwanczyk)
This course was originally scheduled for January and has now been rescheduled for March 26, April 2, and April 9. The participant will learn their skin types and the basic techniques for applying makeup.

Personal Money

(Anil Kriilani)

The participant will learn the basics of Saving and Investing, Principals of Financial Management, Vehicles of Investment, Planning RRSP, Building Investments and Tax Planning in this eight week course which is scheduled to start tonight March 19. Pre-Retirement Planning:

(Ministry of Tourism and Recreation)

There will be an introductory session of this program held either at the end of April or start of May with a following full course to be presented in the fall. The questions facing those who will be retiring and those planning for their retirement will be covered in this informative program.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:

It was of great interest to me to read Catherine Adey's response to my letter of February 19 on the subject of day care.

I do not feel that my geographical location or status as an "uninformed, armchair politician" are germane to the question being discussed, or that Ms. Adey's extrapolations and misrepresentations of my argument are particularly justified; but she has raised some points worthy of consideration:

(1) It should be clear from both my previous letters that single parents are not the parties being condemned. It should also be patently obvious that two adults are necessary for the conception of a child, and therefore both parents are responsible to support the child!

I would suggest that monies presently allocated for day care would be better utilized hunting down those shirking their parental responsibilities. In any case, present day care facilities should limit themselves to serving single parents.

(2) Ms. Adey is correct in asserting that parenting cannot be judged solely by whether or not the mother is home or not. But even a dissident mother will provide more individual care than a paid surrogate can.

No one in their right mind would suggest that any social issue can be solved by asserting that responsible people will automatically do the right thing, and that irresponsible people should be given the freedom to choose irresponsibility. That is equivalent to suggesting that I ought to have the freedom to drink and drive even though I might kill people.

(3) I also agree that parenting means helping your children to "grow to be independent, responsible human beings." However, I do question whether this ought to be expected from children under the age of four. Be honest now. Can you muster enough energy after an eight hour work day to give your children the quality time they deserve?

If you think you can, it's likely you are either (a) on uppers, or (b) failing to appreciate the scope of your child's needs.

(4) As has been previously pointed out, the fact that people without children may be asked to support a Centre is an irrelevant to the central issue as the fact that childless couples pay school taxes and that those who have never collected unemployment insurance pay UIC premiums constantly.

Quite obviously, this is an emotional issue, but I would appreciate a logical, well-thought out refutation of my position if such is possible.

Insults, exaggeration, and gainsaying do not an argument make.
