

Chamber revived for towns

 ployees up to $200 for companies with 31 or more employees, including both full and part-time.

Under the by-laws, there will also be $10 individual memberships, for those retired from the business sector but who still have an interest in the Chamber. Annual $25 associate memberships will be offered to government officials and elected members of government, the clergy, cultural organizations, and charities.

Cassie noted that based on a projected total membership of 46 people for the first year, the Chamber would have an income in its first year of $27,095, balanced by expenditures of the same anticipated amount. There would also be a $1,172 reserve fund. He added that the Chamber will be a non-profit organization.

He also said that Terrace Bay did have a Chamber 12 years ago, but it folded due to lack of interest. As no records from that Chamber still exist today, the new Chamber will have to start all over again.

After the opening motions were passed, talk then turned to the formation of the Chamber's Council, an executive of eight core members.

Moore said that the Council will be expanded to a total of 12 if and when Schreiber's business community joins the Chamber.

"Personally, I don't think it's a matter of equal representation from both towns," he said. "A total of 16 on the Council would be pretty unwieldy...we should start small."

"We'll just start with a base of eight for now," Cassie agreed. "But we are not segregating Terrace Bay and Schreiber. We'll be one unit."

Nine candidates had agreed to run for the eight open Council positions. A vote was then held, and after the ballots were counted, Mike Moore came out with the most votes, at 17, with Darlene Noble at 16.

The others elected to the Council were Mary Cashmore, Kim Murray, Bryon Cassie, Mike Gould, Clyde Gordon, and Ken Randle. Terry Korzinski lost to Gordon in a tie-breaking vote for the eighth and final Council seat. Both of them were not in attendance at the meeting.

A meeting of the Council was held after the general Chamber session was adjourned, and it was decided that the officers within the Council will be decided at the Council's August 25 meeting. Until then, a membership drive will be held in Terrace Bay and Schreiber, Moore said.

The next meeting of the entire Chamber will not be held until September.

Biking for MS

Richard Beecroft, 36, of Ottawa, has peddled his three-wheeled cycle for almost three years through 16 countries on four continents, and is now on the final leg of the Multiple Sclerosis (MS) World Tour, which will end in Toronto on August 19. Beecroft, who has had MS since he was 19, left Kenora on 25 and is scheduled to stop in Terrace Bay on July 7. His goal is to make the public aware of the disease and to give support and encouragement to those who have MS.

Tourney scheduled

The Ministry of Natural Resources will be hosting a Mixed Slow Pitch Fun Tournament on August 8 to 10, according to a news release from the Terrace Bay Recreation Office.

The entry fee is $75 per team for the event. John McGrath, at 825-9435 and Ben Prince, at 825-3634, are the contact persons. All team entries must be received by July 18. Contact either John or Ben at the above numbers for more information.
