Torchbearers selected soon and put into bins for each of the 88 days. Torchbearers will be selected in a random draw by an independent judging organization.

"The enthusiasm that Canadians have shown is far beyond our expectations," said Wolfgang Gregory, project director for Petro-Canada. "I don't think anyone in our office pool even came close to guessing the total number of applicants."

"The overwhelming response to the Olympic Torch Relay application program is another demonstration of the pride Canadians feel in hosting the XV Olympic Winter Games," said OCO '88 Chairman, Frank King.

"We commend Petro-Canada, the organizer and sponsor, in their execution of the program that will give Canadians everywhere the opportunity to Share the Flame."

The Olympic Torch Relay starts in St. John's, Newfoundland, on Nov. 17

this year, winding its way across Canada, passing through every capital city in the country and even touching down in Yellowknife, Inuvik and Whitehorse.

The torch will be carried by 6,214 Canadians chosen from the applications that have been received by Petro-Canada.

Applications were sent to every Canadian household on Feb. 13 and had to be returned to Petro-Canada by March 31.

Arthur Andersen & Co., a national accounting firm, is keeping a careful watch to ensure there is no tampering with the selection process.

"We have to be sure each Canadian who applied to Share the Flame is treated in the same fashion," said Wayne Richards of Arthur Andersen.

From May 5 to May 11, names will be drawn for each day segment and the winners will be notified soon afterwards.
