

Pollen blown by wind resembles fire smoke

This Week in Fire
Smokes in Basemap 505872
 In periods of hazards, grid systems are flown by aircraft to detect fires within the various districts throughout the province. The aircraft carries an observer with the pilot and their object is to spot smoke from fires and report them for suppression action. This is another reason why fire permits are necessary.

Recently, a detection plane reported a possible smoke in basemap 505872. As the story goes, Armstrong was picking up lightning fires and two Cansos and another bird dog aircraft were enroute from Geraldton to this area.

They were diverted to check out the area for smoke, when they encountered more smokes.

A 205 helicopter and fire crew enroute from Thunder Bay were diverted to take initial attack on these possible fires.

When they arrived in the area they encountered more smokes. It is hard to visualize all these aircraft in one area with no contact of a positive fire location.

As the scenario continued, it was ascertained that the pollen from the conifer trees was being blown by the wind which caused the same effect as smoke coming from the forest.

Oh well, all was safe and we were all a little wiser.

As the fire scene returns to a more normal situation, fire crews are returning to their assigned areas. This year's fire crews are as illustrated. Let's welcome these hard-working fire fighters to our community.
