women who are beginning a career in cancer research by providing equipment to set up their research laboratories.

5. Establishment of the Terry Fox Cancer Research Clerkship award which has allowed selected medical and dental students to obtain training in cancer research.

6. Supporting workshops that have enabled investigators to share up-to-date information on specialized aspects of cancer research.

7. Establishment of the Terry Fox Programme Project Grants which allow scientists to pool their research efforts. At Mount Sinai Hospital Research Institute funding through this award allows scientists to use genetic engineering to study the genes involved in cancer.

9. Provision of support to increase the scope of existing cancer research programmes through the Terry Fox Expansion Award. At the Clinical Research Institute in Montreal that has made it possible to expand the scope of the study of viruses which cause cancer and the way they bring about the transformation of normal cells to malignant cells.

10. Support of research at the University of Alberta on interleukin 2 through the Terry Fox Special Initiatives Award. This drug plays a vital role in the development of our immune response to cancer and is now being used on an experimental basis to treat certain forms of the disease.

11. Provision of funding for the National Breast Screening Study which aims to demonstrate the capability of early diagnosis on cancer's number one killer in women. Approximately 90,000 Canadian women are participating in the study.

Roughing it

By Tonya Zborowski

On April 25, Ed Sears, a resident of Ottawa set out to follow the ghosts of the original voyagers. Mr. Sears, a 65 year old retired engineer undertook a dangerous and exciting canoe trip by travelling the original trans Canada highway from Ottawa to Lake Athabasca in the Northwest Territories.

His trip is approximately 3,500 miles in length, and he is currently averaging 20 miles per day.

When Sears set out on his trip, the harbour was still covered in ice, and the temperature still dropped well below zero in the evening.

When I asked Mr. Sears what exactly had provoked him to take such a dangerous risk by canoeing 3,500 miles, he said that he was taking the trip so that he is just not sitting at home doing nothing. Sears stated that his journey so far has been dangerous and fascinating.

Mr. Sears has travelled through the Ottawa River, the French Rivers, Georgian Bay, and some of Lake Superior.

He hopes to spend his winter at Fort Cumberland on Lake Winnipeg. During the winter, he plans to begin writing his historical novel that will be based on his impressions and insights of his canoe trip. The novel will be titled North 49 degrees West.

The first part of the book will cover his trip from the Ottawa River through to Fort William.

Sears hopes to reach his destination by next fall, and then he will settle down to write the second part of his book which will contain his experiences from Lake Winnipeg to Lake Athabasca.

Mr. Sears is certainly roughing it out! However, he thinks that the gift of beauty is a just reward for the hardships that he is enduring.

Promising future for Terrace Bay youth

By Tonya Zborowski

Encouraging youths to pursue their dreams and to develop their talents should be an objective of every person in a community. After all, today's youths are tomorrow's political leaders, merchants, and artists.

Here at the News Office, we had the opportunity to have a very talented teenager entertain us on Wednesday afternoon.

Fourteen year old Mitch Bolduc, is a resident of Terrace Bay, who will be entering High School in September. Mitch entertained us by singing "Rockin Robin", and "Old time Rock 'n Roll".

He started singing when he was seven years old, and he has had no formal voice training. However, if you have heard Mitch sing then you know that his voice is unique and very polished. Mitch told us that he sings mostly country and Rock and Roll, and that he hopes to eventually make a career out of his singing.

Mitch already has a considerable amount of singing experiences. He has sang at the Calgary Stampede, the West Edmonton Mall, the Canadian Lakehead Exhibition, Weddings, talent shows, and the Grade eight graduation at St. Martin's Separate School this year.

As far as prizes and awards go, Mitch said that he and his father placed first in a talent show in Longlac, Ontario.

Mitch is just one example of a very talented youth in the community. Way to go Mitch!

Ministries to invest money for tourism

Background- Four provincial government ministries will invest $15 million over five years to boost tourism in the North.

Between 1986 and 1991, the Ministries of Tourism and Recreation, Transportation and Communications, Natural Resources and Northern Development and Mines will provide grants under the new Northern Ontario Tourist Information Centres Enhancement program (NOTICE).

It is funded through the $100 million Northern Development fund aimed at fuelling economic development in Ontario's North.

The NOTICE program has two major components:

First, the NOTICE program will provide capital grants assistance to Municipalities, Ontario Tourism Associations, Chambers of Commerce and other affiliated groups to establish or enhance the overall quality and standards of Tourist Information Centres across Northern Ontario.

Second, the NOTICE program integrated with the Ontario Ministry of Transportation and Communications to co-ordinate the development of over 90 high quality rest stops and picnic sites
