

River mouth blocked by sand

By Ken Lusk
The News

Terrace Bay Police Chief Don Kidder has informed Terrace Bay Council about his concern that boats are once again having difficulty getting out of the river mouth at the Terrace Bay beach.

Because Kidder's jurisdiction extends out into Lake Superior, he is concerned it is blocked.

The Terrace Bay Police might have difficulty getting out into the lake in case of an emergency.

The river mouth was blocked before last June and an agreement was reached between the Ministry of Natural Resources and Ontario Hydro to flush out the build-up at the river mouth.

Low water levels

New MNR District Manager for Terrace Bay Ron Running told the News that nothing can be done about the river mouth at the present time.

He said the main reason is because of the very low water levels of the inland lakes and rivers in the area this year (from Northeastern Ontario all the way to the Manitoba border).

Running said that Ontario Hydro, when water levels are normal, can divert some of its water capacity from Hays Lake through the river mouth to rid it of the build-up (this was done last June).

Running said because of the low water levels right now, Ontario Hydro regrets they cannot assist with a flushing out; they just cannot afford the water necessary to do the job.

Back Hoe job

MNR District Manager Running told the News that a local resident, Roy Teniuk, suggested to the MNR that a back hoe could possibly clear out the build-up at the river mouth.

It was a good idea, but unfortunately it didn't work because the machine kept getting stuck in the soft sand.

The message that Running would like to get across is that there are many demands placed on our water system, namely Kimberly-Clark, Hydro and the township.

The trick here is to keep everyone happy. Everyone needs the water for different reasons and a balance between them must be made.

Three-way discussion

Running said Hydro, the MNR, and township representatives will soon get together to discuss future water management so problems like this do not happen on a regular basis in the future.

The discussions and the solution will most-likely tie-in with the township's waterfront development project.

Running says the river mouth will be flushed out in the spring.

He said no one is the bad guy in this situation. "It's Mother Nature."

Economic development discussed for economic development (ideas)," said Joubert.

"It's for council, not a township employee. It's not the way to go."

Clerk-Treasurer Dave Fulton said it is not his or Mitchell's intention to tell council what to do.

We can give council advice and recommendations, he said.

"I didn't plan to sit on the committee (economic development)," Mitchell told Joubert.

"I would like to see this addressed formally sometime," said Counc. Houston.

He believes subjects of this magnitude should be discussed before council meetings so that everyone is in agreement about when and where it should be discussed. (More from Mitchell in this issue).
