

Ontario mining grows

Ontario's mining industry continued strong growth in 1987, according to recently released figures from the Ministry of Northern Development and Mines.

The total value of Ontario's mineral output increased 17.5 per cent last year to $5.5-billion. Gold led the increase with a 36 per cent jump over 1986. Ontario's annual gold production is now worth more than $1-billion.

Ontario produces as much non-fuel mineral wealth as Quebec, British Columbia and Saskatchewan combined.
