

Dear John:

John Deere Answers Your Lawn and Garden Woes

You Gotta Play to Win

Dear John: I've had good luck with choosing numbers in the state lottery, but choosing fertilizer is a whole new game! What do the numbers on the bag mean?

Dear Lotto Lee: Lawn fertilizers pay off through a mix of three primary nutrients, represented by the numbers on the bag. The winning combination is based on the amount of nutrients lawns need for growth and how quickly they're absorbed.

The first number refers to nitrogen (N), which keeps grass in the green. The second nutrient, phosphorus (P), helps root development, while the third, potassium (K), fights disease. A 3-1-2 ratio of nitrogen to phosphorus to potassium is an instant winner for most lawns. For example, your lucky numbers could be 15-5-10.

The N-P-K content is also given as a percentage of the bag's total weight. For example, in a 35 lb. bag with a 15-5-10 ratio, 15 percent of the mix (or 5 1/4 pounds) is nitrogen. Besides the nutrients, the mix contains inert ingredients that help spread the nutrients evenly over the lawn.

Dear John: How do I grow those cute miniature vegetables I see on salad bars?

Dear Tom Thumb: There are two ways to produce miniature vegetables in your garden. Some of the minis on the market, like carrots, zucchini and summer squash, may be the fruit from regular crops harvested before they've reached full maturity. Most "baby" vegetables, though, are grown from special seeds.

A number of seed companies are beginning to offer these special seeds, usually called "compact" or "mini" vegetables. While these seeds are different from the regular seeds you've been using in the garden, planting and harvesting procedures for minis are the same as for the larger varieties.

In general, the small size of mini vegetables makes them more perishable than their full-size varieties.

Dear John: I'm giving my lawn a facelift by planting a few small trees. Any tips on caring for them?

Dear Nip and Tuck: Newly planted trees need plenty of water. Keep the tree especially well-watered during dry spells; surrounding the base with mulch will help the soil retain moisture. Avoid bumping into the trunk when mowing around the tree by creating a border around the base with a mix of shredded bark or gravel—it'll make mowing easier, too.

Drowning Prevention Day

August 5th was Drowning Prevention Day. Drowning is the second leading cause of death in Canada, following car accidents.

Over 1,200 Canadians drown every year. Eighty-five per cent of drowning victims are male. The vast majority of drownings occur in open water - lakes, rivers, oceans. Less than 10 per cent happen in swimming pools.

One-third of drownings are suspected or known to involve alcohol. Alcohol affects your ability to function in three crucial ways: your balance, judgement and reaction time are affected almost immediately with the first drink.

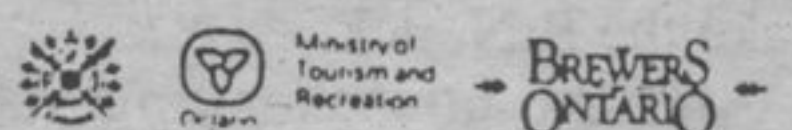

One in five boaters is a non-swimmer. Not having or wearing life jackets of Protective Floating Devices, is common among victims who drown in boating accidents.
