R.I.D.E. grant money runs out this April

By Monica Wenzlaff

During this past holiday season, random R.I.D.E. spot checks by the Terrace Bay Police Force for drinking and driving resulted in one 12-hour suspension which was laid on New Year's Eve.

"R.I.D.E. (Reduce Impaired Driving Everywhere) has been a success due to full assistance from the community," said Police Chief Don Kidder. He said people are taking a responsible view to drinking.

In April, 1988, the Ontario government supplied the Terrace Bay Police with a $16,000 grant to start the program. The grant covered advertising materials, equipment, and over-time pay for officers for two-years.

This April, 1990, the funding will run out, yet Kidder would like to see the program continue. He will approach the town council to request funds to support the R.I.D.E. program.

Although R.I.D.E. appears to be beneficial, smaller police forces have a difficult time setting up the program due to the manpower shortage, said Kidder. A cooperative effort between the Terrace Bay Police and Schreiber OPP has allowed the program to run successfully here.

In 1989, Over 4,000 vehicles were stopped resulting in seven 12-hour suspensions and one impaired charge being laid.
