

Mary, Mary Quite Contrary, Now is the Time To Say No.

Unlike fairy tales, drugs are a reality many parents aren't ready to face. But with our nation's growing drug problem, parents need to ask themselves some tough questions. Do our kids know drugs are not a game? Do they know they don't need drugs to have fun? Do they know why it's so important to resist peer pressure and say no to drugs? As a parent, the best thing you can do is talk honestly with your kids. Talking down to them or using scare tactics doesn't work. Give them the facts, let them know you care, and make it clear they can count on you when it's time for them to make tough decisions.
