scooptrams to the shaft where it is brought up 7 tonnes at a time. The area is filled in with waste rock when the workers advance on to the next stope.

The machines must be taken apart to be transported underground and then put back together. This is done in an underground shop supervised by Al Menard. These men who also maintain the machines, can put together a 6 yard loader in about a week. The machines are also washed down and checked regularly, After the ore is brought above ground it will go through the milling process. The rock is conveyed to the mill where it will be crushed into a fine powder.

The crushed rock then goes through a separation process called floatation where water and chemicals are added in.

The copper concentrate and zinc concentrate are both separated and put into tanks. From the tanks, each concentrate will go through a machine to remove the water leaving the concentrate with about 6 to 7% moisture.

Each concentrate is conveyed to a pile where C.P. contractors will transport it to the Schreiber transfer site.

The milling process is monitored through every step by employees using state of the art technology.

Approximately forty employees work in the mill at Minnova and about fifty work in the technical and administration departments.

In recognition of achieving six months with no lost time accidents, all received a commemorative jacket and hat.

Youth tours Europe with wind band

A sixteen-year-old Terrace Bay student is spending three weeks of his summer in Europe performing with the United States Collegiate Wind Band.

Anthony Friedrich left for New York on July 2. There, he met the other 93 students he would be performing with for the first time. The band members had three days to rehearse together before they boarded a plane headed for Paris, France.

Anthony began playing the clarinet when he took Grade 9 music three years ago.

"I just figured I'd get my grade nine credit, but I enjoyed it so much that I kept going," he said. Although Anthony has just completed his Grade 11 year at Lake Superior High, he has already finished his fourth year of music through the school. He also performs with the community band and the stage band at school.

Last spring Anthony began receiving information about the wind band, after Mr. Alexander, his high school music teacher recommended him for the program. When he was presented with the Junior All Canadian Hall of Fame Band Honours at the high school awards banquet, Anthony decided to get serious about his music.

"After I got the award, I started looking more into the wind band," he said. He started practicing scales on his own, and then set up weekly private lessons with Jim Culverhouse. In August, Anthony spent a week at the National Music Camp of Canada to further his training.

Only two weeks before he was scheduled to leave, Anthony received his sheet music from New York. He got straight to work, practicing at least five or six hours a day because he was expected to play all 28 songs perfectly by the time he got to New York.

"What I was going to get was a complete surprise. Some of the music sounded familiar, but I had never played the music before," he said, looking over the repertoire which consists of marches, operatic and classical music, and many popular songs such as the "Muppet Medley."

"I just have a few bugs to work out of the system yet," said Anthony a few days before he left. Fortunately, Alexander and Culverhouse were there to help him whenever he had a problem.

During the three week tour, the band will visit many cities in Belgium, Holland, Germany, Austria, Switzerland, France, and England. Anthony has been to Germany twice, yet he has never made a trip overseas without his family.

Anthony will get a chance to see many of his relatives as he travels through Europe. He will be spending a free day in Boppard, West Germany with his great grandmother.

"All his relatives will be meeting him at different places," said Benno Friedrich, Anthony's grandfather. While in Germany, each band member will also be spending a few days with a host family.

"He's having a ball, but he's very busy with a lot of practicing," said Anthony's grandmother Edith, who spoke with Anthony just after he arrived in Europe. His entire family has been behind him since he was given this opportunity of a lifetime.

Lions' Donation

The News

The Terrace Bay / Schreiber Lions Club recently donated 20 tickets to Birchwood residents to enable them to take part in Canada Day festivities.

Nine residents from Birchwood Terrace gladly accepted the chance to go to The Circus of the Stars when it performed in Terrace Bay on Saturday, June 30th.

Rena Daniels, an employee at Birchwood, accompanied the seniors to the Big Top where it was filled to capacity with happy circus goers.

When asked, all seniors seemed to like the ponies at the circus the most of all the acts.

One Birchwood resident, Stewart Anderson stated, "I liked the ponies and the the kids riding the camels. I also liked it when the elephant came out.

Another senior, John Hachey said, "I liked the balancing act."

The seniors that were asked said they loved the circus and were glad the Lions Club gave them the chance to go. All agreed that if given the chance again next year, they would definitely go.
