Lake Superior Regiment Reunion

Northwestern Ontario's World War II fighting unit, the Lake Superior Regiment (Motor) holds its seventh national reunion in Thunder Bay, Sept 7 - 9.

The reunion will commemorate the 50th anniversary of mobilization for WWII. It will also mark the formal dedication of a new memorial for the members of the regiment who died in the war.

Hundreds of men from Northwestern Ontario joined the regiment in the summer of 1940 and spent the next years training and winning the war. In the liberation of Northwest Europe the regiment earned 71 decorations but it paid a severe price. One hundred and ninety-nine (199) men were killed in action. Many of these gallant men came from Port Arthur, And Fort William, and from Kenora, Dryden, Sioux Lookout, and Fort Frances.

To pay tribute, the Lake Superior Regiment (Motor) Association has placed the names of their fallen comrades on two stone plaques in Hillcrest Park, a height of land in Thunder Bay that has a commanding view of Lake Superior. Next to the plaques, the Association has placed a restored Universal Carrier, the main fighting vehicle used by the regiment throughout the war.

The dedication of the monument takes place at 2:00 p.m., Saturday, September 8 in the presence of the Lt. Governor of Ontario Lincoln Alexander.

The 1990 reunion headquarters is at the Airlane Hotel.

Permanent Waving - part 1

Permanent Waving was first practiced by the early Romans and Egyptians. They used to wrap hair in small sticks and cover them with mud.

In 1905, Charles Nessler invented the heated permanent waving machine which was the first real progress in permanent waving. With the machine, heat was applied to pre-formed curls through a series of heaters attached by wires.

The spiral permanent wave was the first method used, but could only be used on long hair.

In 1926, the croquinole permanent wave was introduced to meet the need for short hair.

In 1931, the pre-heat method of permanent waving was introduced. With this method, the machine was not needed, instead the clamps were first heated by an electrical apparatus, and then clamped over the prepared curls.

Another method was the machineless method which was introduced in 1932. The source of heat was from chemical pads which were moistened with water.

Between 1938-39, cold waving was introduced in California. But it didn't spread out of that state until 1940. It was called cold waving because it was given at room temperature.

Today there are hundreds of different perms and perm rods that can be used.

INFORMATION SESSIONS

Control Order to be Issued to Kimberly-Clark Canada Inc. Kraft Pulp Mill

Environment Ontario invites Terrace Bay area residents to review the draft of a Control Order to be issued to the Kimberly-Clark Canada Inc. kraft pulp mill.

The Control Order will retain current requirements for suspended solids and biochemical oxygen-demanding (BOD) substances and bring the requirements for adsorbable organic halides (AOX) in line with other kraft mills in Ontario. The Control Order will also require the mill to conduct extensive monitoring.

Suspended solids can smother the bottom of receiving streams, adversely affecting fish and aquatic life. BOD substances use up dissolved oxygen, vital to all marine organisms in receiving waters. Chlorinated organic material, in pulp and paper mills effluent, can be directly toxic to fish or passed on through the food chain.

Ministry staff and company representatives will be available to answer questions about the draft Control Order at two information sessions on Thursday Sept. 13 from 2 p.m. - 4 p.m. and 7 p.m. - 9 p.m. at the Terrace Bay Recreation Centre.

Copies of the draft Control Order will be available at the information sessions. Advance copies can be obtained from the Township Office or by contacting the ministry's Thunder Bay Office at (807) 475-1205. Written comments must be submitted to the Thunder Bay office within two weeks following the information sessions. Nathalie Muller — French designate 475-1315.
