

Seat belts save lives

As October is seat-belt month in Ontario, the Ministry of Transportation has released the following information.

1. Seat belts reduce chance of injury by 50 per cent.

2. Most injuries and deaths result from moderate speed accidents close to home. So buckle up as soon as you get in a vehicle.

3. In a collision the front seat unbelted occupants can be thrown against the driver or through the windshield. Back seat passengers can be tossed forward striking or crushing those in the front seat.

4. Seat belts help in case of fire or submersion in water! Yes, they help you to remain conscious and thus enable you to get free of the car.

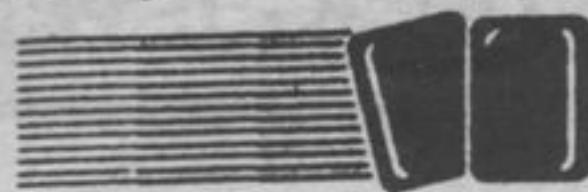

5. Seat belts keep the driver behind the wheel and in control of the car. (The lap belt should be worn snug and low over the hips.)

The shoulder belt should be worn loose enough to allow an inch or two between chest and the belt.

Carolyn's critique

The Experts PG13 1989 94min

Filmed on location in British Columbia

Starring: John Travolta, Arye Gross, Charles Martin Smith, Kelly Preston and Rick Ducommun.

This movie is an interesting story along the lines of Glasnost and not always believing what you see. Travolta and Gross play Travis and Wendall; 2 struggling entrepreneurs. They already lost a lot of money on one club and are now trying to get another going. Cameron Smith (Charles Martin Smith) enters their lives. He says he wants to open a top-notch club in Indiana Springs, Nebraska. He wants them to renovate, manage and showcase it. When he tells them he'll pay each $1,000.00 a week, they jump at it.

On the plane, they drink champagne and proceed to pass out. They wake up in Smith's house. Smith's wife, Betty, doesn't understand when they ask for a cup of java, his kids don't know what a walkman is, and the town itself looks like it is stuck in a Mayberry rerun. Oh, On Toto! I don't think we're in Kansas anymore. (Or Nebraska, or even America).

Right, you guessed it. We're in Russia. Indiana Springs was set up by the KGB to train spies in the art of being American. Smith wants to bring them into the present and he has kidnapped Travis and Wendall to do it. But, another agent, Jones, thinks that the spy town is just fine and he doesn't want the Americans there. He gets Sparks (Rick Ducommun of BERBS fame) to keep track of them.

What happens to our two Americans? Well, they try to bring a little hep and a little cool to this town. Along the way they meet some pretty interesting characters. Bonnie (Preston) is a true believer in doing your duty for your country. She is suppose to seduce Travis and keep track of him. She does her duty well, but she falls in love with him. Little old ladies bake pies for the club opening. A young black man is a walking advertisement for Nerd Of The Year and becomes their bartender.

This movie is good clean fun. It demonstrates the old adage "To be free, is to be alive". The people of Indiana Springs realize that their lives are only a sham and they want the real thing. How they get it is an adventure in communism verses americanism.

This movie was made before Travolta's wildly successful "Look Who's Talking", but it still shows how much he's changed since his "Saturday Night Fever" days. Give it a look - I think you'll be pleasantly surprised.

I give "The Experts" an 8.
