All the World's a Circus

Ice Fishing

the way snoring is a musical genre.

When an off-shore wind whips up, Miller Time turns to Helicopter Time and fishermen get to see their tax dollars in action as the Canadian Armed Forces helicopter swoops down from Trenton to pluck them from their island of ice, now nearing Dunkirk, New York.

Oh, and there is one more thing. What bodily function is precipitated by cold beer hitting a warm bladder on a very cold day? I'm not sure what your lasting impression of ice fishing might be but for me observing 40 and some days 60 ice fishermen trying to urinate through one-piece snowmobile suits is a sight I won't soon forget. To an ice fisherman, this too is recreation.

The cardinal rule of ice fishing has to do with safety. When the thickness of the ice is exactly equal to the thickness of the head - you're cleared for take off. You have found you're perfect sport - Enjoy.

Truthfully? I'd rather be a Roman Catholic.

Oops, gotta run. John's got the sled ready and the man gets ugly when I'm late.
