A great weekend at the Rosspport Fish Derby

one liquor charge was laid on the lake, there were no boating violations and every one stopped held a fishing license.

The lake was patrolled over the weekend by two boats, each with an MNR Conservation Officer and an OPP officer.

A highlight of the weekend was the stop-over, on Sunday afternoon, of the three canoes of Voyageurs en route to Winnipeg.

The Voyageurs, an expedition of students from Lakehead University and the University of Ottawa retracing the routes of Canadian explorer Sir Alexander MacKenzie, were led from the harbour to the derby grounds by their piper.

Here they presented an historical drama that gave the audience some insight into the life of MacKenzie and the Voyageurs who were instrumental in opening up Canada.

Other activities over the weekend included the Fish

Derby Dance on Friday night, a children's matinee on Saturday with music by Rodney Brown and on Saturday night an Arm Wrestling Championship.

Fisheries Unit keeps track of fish stocks

The News

The Lake Superior Fisheries Unit (LSFU) has become a familiar sight at the Rosspport Derby and other major fish derbies on the Northshore.

Working in the sun all day behind the weigh station on the Rosspport derby grounds, fisheries technicians sampled the weekend's catch.

"Fish derbies are good spots to see a lot of fish in a short amount of time," said Pat Furlong, a fisheries technician with the LSFU working at the Rosspport Derby.

The information gathered provides data on the status of fish stocks and is used to determine long term trends in the fish population.

Fishermen bring their catch to the unit after the weigh-in.

The technicians first ask the anglers to indicate, with as much precision as possible, where they caught the fish.

The length of the fish is then measured and a sample of the scales are taken.

"We also keep track of lamprey scars," Furlong said.

This helps to determine whether or not the lamprey are getting worse.

The fish are checked for fin clips, which all stocked fish have, to determine whether the fish is native or stocked.

The inner ear bone, the otolis, of the fish is then removed.

They are the best structure there is for determining the age of the fish, Furlong said.

The information is compared over time to see what is happening with fish population.

"What we're trying to do is make sure the fishery is healthy, he said.

The Lake Superior Fisheries Unit is part of the Ministry of Natural Resource's provincial network of Fisheries Assessment Units (FAU). The FAU consists of 28 units containing 177 lakes located across the province. These study lakes are representative of all lakes in the province.

The Lake Superior Fisheries Unit is responsible for monitoring fish populations in the Canadian waters of Lake Superior. The lake has a surface area of over 80,000 square kilometers, a maximum depth of 406 meters and over 75 species of fish.

Everyone Welcome

Thank You

I would like to take this opportunity to thank my family and friends for the celebrations for my 85th birthday. Thanks to all who came out in the afternoon and to Beth for the presentation. Thanks to the family for the supper and dance. To Ronnie for presenting the plaques, to John for the gift from my brothers and sisters and spouses. To Ron for the album from the family, to Rickey and Tanya for the housecoat with all the names and to Judy for the decorating. Thanks to the United Church women for serving our supper and to Randall for the music. Thanks to Joyce and Terry for the use of their house the next day for the family bar-b-que. Thanks to Florence for the pictures. To all my family who travelled to be with me and the ones here, your efforts were greatly appreciated. It was an occasion to remember.

May God bless you all.
