

In search of higher education

"I had a room-mate last year. It was okay, but by the end of the year we were getting on each other's nerves. This time I have a single room."

Some students choose to venture father away from home and explore the urban opportunities of Southern Ontario.

Cecile Borutski attends Sir Wilfred Laurier University in Waterloo where she is in her third year of an Honours Business Administration program.

"I'm looking forward to getting out of a small town again, but I'm dreading all the work," she said.

"I'd advise people to get out of a small town and go to school, just to see what else is out there. It's a great experience," she added.

Lisa Heinrich studies Drama and Psychology at the University of Guelph. She often wonders where her home really is.

"I don't like the transition going from home to school, but I don't like leaving school to come home in the summer innovative cancer research projects. In Canada these projects have benefitted from over $90 million raised by the Marathon of Hope and The Terry Fox Run.

Terry Fox inspired many during the summer of 1980 and still does today.

either," she explained.

She agrees with Borutski that students should experience the challenge of living in another area.

To all the college and university students, whether you're going away for the first time or returning for yet another year, have an exciting and successful term. Education is not confined to books and classrooms, so take advantage of all of the extra-curricular events that your school offers.

Good Luck!

Thank You

thank you very much to those that attended and helped in any way on the occasion of our 25th Anniversary party. A special thanks to our children. This will always be remembered.
