Conviction overturned

A Terrace Bay police constable has successfully appealed his conviction on charges of common assault while on duty.

Constable Glen Krentz was sentenced last March to 14 days in jail after an incident involving Melody Mateev, of Terrace Bay, on Aug. 4, 1990.

Krentz was suspended from the force for a week, but still retained his Constable First Class designation.

He immediately appealed his assault conviction, and it was overturned in Thunder Bay District Court Sept. 25.

"It's long overdue," Krentz said Friday, adding he never had any doubt he would be acquitted.

Melody Mateev said Friday she didn't know if she could take further action against Krentz, but she's glad he didn't go to jail.

"I had to fight for what I believed in," said Mateev.

Bus for the disabled

After a three-year wait, it looks like disabled residents of Schreiber and Terrace Bay can finally look forward to increased mobility.

Both the Schreiber and Terrace Bay Town Councils have agreed to make a formal request to the Ministry of Transportation for a grant to operate a Handi-Transit bus.

The bus would transport disabled persons in and around Terrace Bay and Schreiber.

The Ministry has indicated it will approve the application.

All that remains is for the Handi-Transit Advisory Committee to give the Thunder Bay Home for the Aged, who will be providing the bus, a proposed bus schedule.

New const. starts soon

The Terrace Bay Police Service have hired a new constable, Chief Wes Fenton said Thursday.

Nick Cirillo, a four year veteran of the York Regional Police Force, will begin working in Terrace Bay Oct. 7.

"He should have no problem fitting into the community," Fenton said. "He's a very personable person."

The retirement of former Police Chief Don Kidder last June created an opening on the force.

Correction

Last week's story on the Environmental Youth Core in the Rossport Islands should have featured Dave 'Spear' of Rossport, not Dave 'Spear', as appeared in the article. I goofed.
