Elissa Glad, a student at Schreiber Public School, has won the Lake Superior Board of Education's annual Christmas Card contest.

She originally entered the contest last year, and her design was one of the finalists sent from Schreiber to the Board contest last Spring.

"Schools were allowed one entry per 100 students," says Schreiber principal John St. Amand.

"So the school entered as many of their top finishers as possible—they're the cream of the crop."

Schools in Terrace Bay, Marathon and Manitouwadge also participated.

Elissa says she has entered other contests, including the Emsdale Fall Fair, in which she won first prize for her bean bag doll.

"I still haven't cashed the cheque yet," she says.

Prizes this time included free copies of her design on Christmas Cards.

"I also won dinner with the principal," she says.

"My husband(Eric) and I are very proud of her," says Tracy Glad, Elissa's mother, who says her daughter has shown an artistic inclination before..

"She doodles quite a bit, and done well in other contests."

Out of all of the eligible schools, about 15 designs were submitted for final consideration to the Lake Superior

When Canadians work together we can take on the world and win.

To succeed in today's world, Canadians must be able to compete because our jobs directly depend upon it. Our competitive edge will secure the prosperity we want for ourselves and our children. Prosperity that's measured not only by productivity but by better jobs, greater opportunities for young Canadians, support for health, social and senior citizen programs - and more.

We can achieve it by investing in our own abilities and being a country that says... yes we can.

Yes we can. We've got the proof.

A look at some of Canada's success stories proves it can be done... with real benefits for individuals, the communities they live in and for Canadian industry.

Hundreds of Canadian companies are achieving remarkable international success. They're creating jobs, developing new skills and opportunities for thousands of Canadians and creating markets around the world for Canadian products.

Yes we can. We've got the ability to build on our successes.

We have a history of working in co-operation with others for world class achievements in peacekeeping, medicine and space exploration. Now, with business, labour, governments, academic and social groups working together, we can achieve prosperity through international competitiveness. But there is one more critical factor: Canada's ultimate potential depends on the commitment of individual Canadians.

Yes we can. We've got the people.

It's time now to unite around our greatest economic challenge yet... preparing for a prosperous future. As individuals, there's a lot we can do. Put yourself in the picture through further education or skills development programs.

As parents, we can encourage our children to stay in school longer and start career planning activities sooner. As employers, we can think of training as a business investment and encourage a work environment where excellence and a commitment to learning are celebrated. Finally, as Canadians, we can become a positive part of the process through involvement in the consultations on our economic future.
