

French college still up in the air

Rég Bélair, MP for Cochrane Superior, questioned the Secretary of State concerning the establishment of a French language college in Northern Ontario. The Bourbeau Report has recommended that such an institution be made available to French-speaking students in the North.

The Secretary of State, who is the federal minister responsible for this matter, answered Bélair's question in very general terms. He said anyone interested in this matter already knows that the Secretary of State and his provincial counterpart have met on a number of occasions without, however, having a mandate to negotiate a final agreement.

In the meantime, the federal and provincial governments are each accusing the other of foot-dragging.

"I can easily understand Northerners' frustration about this issue. Two years ago, the commitment was made to provide a French-language college for the North; it should be underway by now," said Bélair.

In his supplementary question, the MP asked the minister to indicate how much money would be contributed to Ontario for the french-language college.

The Minister responded by saying that the matter was still under negotiation.
