Mobile breast screening van

The staff of the Northwestern Ontario Breast Screening Program has announced the arrival of the mobile screening van.

This large pink van is 40 feet long, and has been specially designed for women of Northwestern Ontario. The interior is decorated in soft feminine shades of dusty rose, giving it a warm, non-clinical atmosphere. There is a wheelchair lift that will enable those women who are physically challenged to access the services. It also carries state-of-the-art mammography equipment.

A mammography technologist and a nurse-examiner will do breast x-rays as well as clinical breast examinations on the van.

The mobile van is the tenth screening centre to be opened by the Ontario Breast Screening Program. The van will screen women for breast cancer throughout Northwestern Ontario, from Marathon and Manitowadge to the Manitoba border.

Since women in Northwestern Ontario have been anxiously awaiting its arrival, the van will proceed immediately into the region. Women are encouraged to call for appointments in their community.

An initiative of the Ministry of Health, the Ontario Breast Screening Program is a component of the Ontario Cancer Treatment and Research Foundation, and is administered by the Thunder Bay Regional Cancer Centre.

Nortop grants

An additional allocation of $2.3 million to the Northern Training Opportunities Program (NORTOP) this summer will ease the overload in funding applications for this popular summer employment program, Northern development and mines Minister Shelly Martel announced in a press released dated June 9.

Premier Bob Rae announced that the Ontario government would allocate an additional $20 million to create 8,500 new summer jobs for students, including new funding to NORTOP.

"The demand for NORTOP assistance has been overwhelming," Martel said. "This speaks well of the impact this program has had on northern employers who are in a position to provide worthwhile job training to students."

The Ministry has already allocated $3.5 million to support 1,600 training opportunities under NORTOP. The new funds are expected to support 2,000 more training positions.

"The additional infusion of $2.3 million will be beneficial to all concerned," said Martel.

other fire equipment, and $5,000 for a reserve fund for a new fire truck.

Running the disabled-transit service is expected to cost the township $19,024, while its share of welfare costs is expected to be $63,000.

That's up marginally from 1991, but compared with 1990, the cost of welfare has increased more than $13,000.

The cost of renewing the sewer system in Schreiber will take a big drop, as the project nears up. It's expected to cost $165,000 in 1992, down from $943,702 in 1991.

The township's long term loan repayment will also drop this year, down to $15,000 from $34,922 in 1991.

quality of life in Marathon, was altered to include Rossport, Schreiber and Terrace Bay before it went to print, says Paternoster.

"We've updated the map to include Rossport, Schreiber and Terrace Bay," she says. "We were able to catch it on time."

The reason our area was left off the map in the first place, Paternoster says, was space.

"Originally, the map was just going to include Marathon, Sault Saint Marie and Thunder Bay," she says.

When they realized they had more space, two provincial parks—Pukasawa and Neys—were also included.

"And then, because the map wasn't cluttered, they included Manitowadge and Nipigon," she says.

The matter came to light when Charlotte Kneipp of Jackfish pointed the omission out in a letter to the editor she wrote to The News, published June 16.

The Aguasabon Chamber of Commerce sent Marathon a copy of the letter, as well as another letter expressing the Chamber's unhappiness with the brochures.

Paternoster says the next printing of the first two publications will probably be next year.

"But you never know—this is the first year we've done it," she says.

Putting the communities in will make the map a bit more cluttered, but she says they're going to do it anyway.

"Because there was concern expressed, we took that into consideration and put them on the map," she says.

"It was just something that happened. It wasn't something that was done intentionally, and now we're putting everybody in. And hopefully we haven't forgotten anybody."

"To my son Dion"

Though you're not too far away,
I miss you night and day,
We've always been two different people,
With problems, high as a steeple,
you, such a smart fellow, me not far below
Neither of us knowing which way to go:
Now that you're gone, and I'm alone,
I would be happy to have you home,
If apart is the way it must be, Then I pray you won't forget.

I love you
