

Invest a little time in Ontario's future

The future of any province lies with their young people who, when they see a need, are prepared to fill it.

In Ontario and this community we are indeed fortunate to have an abundance of young people who fit this description.

It is these young people who deserve, but seldom receive, proper recognition. For that reason the Ontario Junior Citizen of the Year Awards Program was founded in 1981.

This program, a project of the Ontario Community Newspapers Association (OCNA) with assistance this year provided by Bell Canada, has over the past 11 years paid tribute to 144 exemplary individuals or groups between the ages of six and 18.

Junior Citizens represent a broad cross-section of Ontario's fine youth. Some are honoured for their tremendous attitude in coping with illness or handicap. Some have identified a local need, and have taken a leadership role by devoting an amazing amount of time and energy towards community service and betterment.

Still others have been selected for responding instantly in a moment of crisis, or for the way in which they have shown kindness and compassion.

Those chosen to receive the awards, along with their families, are guests of honour at a luncheon in Toronto during the annual convention of the OCNA. Award recipients are joined by Ontario's Lieutenant Governor for a family portrait at Queen's Park, and are presented with $200 and a Junior Citizen pin.

Many young people in our community are worthy of the attention and encouragement provided through the Ontario Junior Citizen of the Year Awards Program. Every nominee will receive a certificate stating that they were considered for this distinct honour and contributed greatly to their community.

Invest a little of your time in Ontario's future. Say 'thank you' to a special young person or group by filling out an Ontario Junior Citizen of the Year nomination form—available now from this OCNA member newspaper.
