NWO concerned about discharge legislation

 biggest problem facing the nation.

The survey was conducted before the Oct. 26 vote, between Oct. 5 and Oct. 8.

Opinion changed when the question was focused on Northwestern Ontario, 43 per cent said unemployment was the biggest issue facing Northwestern Ontario, but only two per cent said the referendum was most important.

Respondents also said the best thing about Canada was the freedom we enjoy, with our health care system coming in a distant second. Our quality of life, peace and security, social benefits and standard of living were also mentioned.

The survey, known as Northwest Viewpoint, is a semi-annual poll conducted by Confederation College. A total of 401 adults were contacted by telephone. A representative sample of people from the districts of Thunder Bay, Rainy River and Kenora were interviewed.

There was strong opposition expressed by respondents to the idea of banning the use of chlorine in the pulp and paper industry. If the legislation meant closing down any mills, 60.6 per cent were opposed to the idea.

There was also strong opposition to mandatory employment equity for private businesses. Almost 74 per cent of those surveyed disagreed with requiring businesses to hire and promote women, non-whites, aboriginal persons and the disabled, while 23.6 per cent agreed with the idea.

People were unsure about the changes to the Ontario Labour Code the province passed last week. Among other things, Bill 40 bans replacement workers during a strike and makes it easier for employees to unionize. The legislation will take effect Jan. 1, 1993.

More than 20 per cent support the changes, 31 per cent oppose them, but 48.3 per cent didn't know what side they supported.

However, nearly 80 per cent of respondents said the NDP should have studied the possible effects of the legislation on Ontario's economy before passing it.

Opinion was also split on the idea of opening a casino in the area, with 36.7 per cent strongly or partially against the idea, 45.8 per cent strongly or partially in favour, and 17.4 per cent somewhere in between.

Sunday shopping had the support of 70.7 per cent of respondents, while 58.9 per cent believe their community is becoming more violent.

Almost 40 per cent hadn't made up their minds about the Charlottetown Accord. However, support for the Yes side was trailing at 22 per cent, ten points less than support for the No side.

"We need to begin focusing more on our strengths and opportunities," said College President Roy Murray. "We have some of the best educational institutions in the world, and with a skilled and flexible workforce, we can compete with anyone."

Results of the survey are considered accurate within plus or minus 4.9 percentage points, 19 times out of twenty.
