Helicopter dispatched to remote site

The relative said the men grew up on the lake, spent most of their childhood summers there together and spent as much time as they could snowmobiling, boating and hunting. "These kids were experienced motor vehicle operators," said the relative. Bracebridge OPP were called about a single snowmobile crash on the north end of the lake. The Canadian Armed Forces Joint Rescue Coordination Centre was called to help due to the remote location and unstable ice, and sent a Royal Canadian Air Force helicopter and search-and-rescue personnel to the scene. Rescuers found two men and airlifted them to West Parry Sound hospital, where they were pronounced dead. The relative said Bates was a master electrician and Dunlop was doing an apprenticeship to become a plumber. "They were well loved," he said. "They had a really positive effect on everyone they knew."
