THE WEEKLY GLOBE. 1871.

THE GLOBE PRINTING COMPANY.
I gratefully acknowledge the support extended to their several publications throughout the length and breadth of Canada during the past year. Twenty-seven years have rolled by since the establishment of the GLOBE in Toronto. From that time to the present hour, its prosperity and influence have been always advancing; but at no time has it ever before held so firmly, or so satisfactorily, the position universally conceded to it, as the leading newspaper of British America.

The improvements recently made on the GLOBE have immensely extended its popularity and circulation; and the publishers confidently claim that it is not only the most widely circulated Journal in British America, but that it is "the largest, the handsomest, the most carefully conducted, and the cheapest newspaper in this Continent."

During the coming year—which is likely to bring with it the most important and exciting events affecting the political and material interests of the Dominion—the GLOBE, by the timely and judicious use of the pen, will be maintained in a reliable summary of the Debates in the Dominion Parliament and the Provincial Legislatures; and the news from all parts of the world will be published up to the latest hour of publication.

THE AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT, which has given such universal satisfaction this year and that it is acknowledged by every farmer to be alone worth the subscription price of the paper, will be maintained in 1871 with undiminished interest under a still more efficient and experienced editor and correspondent.

Several new and exciting tales, "from the pen of the most successful writers of the day," will be published in the GLOBE during the year. No expense will be spared in securing the very latest intelligence by means of Special Telegram Dispatches, Market Reports, Prices Current, and General Commercial Intelligence from all parts of the world, with special attention. Every department of the paper will be maintained in the highest state of perfection.

Notwithstanding the great enlargement and improvement of the GLOBE, the price will have recently been made, the subscription will continue to be the only one that offers a GLOBE, with undiminished interest under a still more efficient and experienced editor and correspondent.

Several new and exciting tales, "from the pen of the most successful writers of the day," will be published in the GLOBE during the year. No expense will be spared in securing the very latest intelligence by means of Special Telegram Dispatches, Market Reports, Prices Current, and General Commercial Intelligence from all parts of the world, with special attention. ### THE CHILD OF THE WRECK; OR THE SAILOR ORPHAN.

"To dread no eyes, and to suspect no tongue, is the great prerogative of innocence; an exemption granted only to the virtuous. But guilt has always its terror and its solitude, and makes its way more shameful and detestable, if it dooms itself to stand in awe of those whom nothing could give influence or weight but their power of betraying."—JOHNSON.

CHAP. VII.—BORROWS OF A SPINSTER.

Continued.

"Never mind, Fizzy, there's never one does close but another starts," MISERABLE PROVERB.

Sharp Badger, Esq., solicitor in his office till a late hour that evening. He was unusually busy, his well-merited reputation for forensic acumen in the cases of his clients having brought a great increase to his business. It was not for his laymen to prepare a recipe for the composition of a successful love letter, but he felt that he could not neglect every requisite ingredient was found in the constitution of Mr. Badger. There was no element wanting, neither mental nor moral, to render his compositions successful. He had a keen eye, a clear mind, and a ready pen to write up such a subject.

Mr. Badger passed the room in deep thought for awhile and was visibly agitated. He had a great deal to think of, and he was not only agitated, but he was also agitated. He was not only agitated, but he was also agitated. He was not only agitated, but he was also agitated.

POETRY.

AMEN.

BY F. H. STOKTON, D.D.

The will of God be done!
He calls the beautiful away,
To worship at the throne,
The beautiful in soul,
The sterner frowns from his control,
Washed in redeeming blood,
God calls the holy one away;
With crown of light,
And vestments bright,
To walk amidst the bloom of everlasting day.

"Amen!"
The dream of life is past!
Oh! what a mass of mingling hues,
Far backward, melts at last!
And what a roar of sounds—
Gay laugh and chilling wail,
Like tapers of steady flame,
Now, like a dying gasp,
The voices, and the rainbow hues,
They fade, they fade,
The flight is made; [ites]
To thee, O mocking earth! no more the spirit

"Amen!"
An onward surge of light!
The sweetness of angelic smiles!
Fair groups in robes of white!
And coming voices bland,
Of melody and bliss;
The pressure of an angel's hand,
The thrill of a saint's kiss;
A deathless world with nightless skies;
Beauty and Youth,
And Love and Truth, [ites]
O blest change, for all that lives, of all that

"Amen!"
The vision of the best!
The sweetness of the Saviour's voice!
The happiness of rest!
The majesty divine,
In solar pomp serene,
From whose rays, all suns that shine,
Their golden glories gleam!
O love of steady love, how came any one to know the facts of the case? By what means had the truth been arrived at, if it really was the truth?
"Well, my dear," said Mr. Westfield to his wife, "I see but one way of clearing up this mystery, and it must be adopted at once."
"Oh! if there is any way, lose no time about it," said she.

LITERATURE.

"He will require your services in the first instance, and will undoubtedly be most grateful to Jane, if that be her name. You must write to her—ad, of course, you will do so as delicately as possible—asking her to let her dear friends know that she had no claim, either by the law of God or men—and, if so, was she not totally unfit to be entrusted with the responsibility of educating little children? And then, again, another question equally perplexing, presented itself—How came any person to invent the cruel scandal, if it was scandalous, and if it were true, how came any one to know the facts of the case? By what means had the truth been arrived at, if it really was the truth?"

"Well, my dear," said Mr. Westfield to his wife, "I see but one way of clearing up this mystery, and it must be adopted at once."
"Oh! if there is any way, lose no time about it," said she.
