Pipe and Jug, or elsewhere, feeling his five-pound note with considerable satisfaction, and studying the substance of what he should say to his new acquaintance on the following evening.

There are some subjects of study comparatively casy, and then there are others surrounded with perplexing difficulties. The student of the latter class of subjects is more likely to arrive at a headache than a logical conclusion; and if it had been a physical possibility for James Jenkins to be visited with a headache, he certainly would have had such a visit that evening. His chief difficulty was not so much from what Mr. Fennill might possibly say to him. Were the talk all on his part, his course would be comparatively clear; but as there are necessarily at least two parties to a dialogue, his utter ignorance of the line of remark to be adopted by Mr. Fennill sorely perplexed him.

You may naturally think, iogenuous reader, that James Jenkins to speak the truth, and they was elear, Aye, so you think; and truly there is something in that—something which commends are the reading has a life of the marriage of the present him to the headache, he certainly would be wrong. Agreed, said Jenkins, and they shook hands and parted for the right. And that night Jenkins regaled himself heartily, imbibing more stimulants than would have agreed with the palate of a total abstainer, and revolving sundry projects in his mind before he went to bed. The exact character of those projects requires no detail here. Suffice it to say, at present, that the last thing but one he thought of before he fell asleep was an early interview with Slipper on the following morning, and the last thing of all was the money he had just been promised by Mr. Fennill.

THE GLOBE PRINTING COMPANY gratefully acknowledge the support extended to their several publications throughout the length and breadth of Canada during the past year. Twenty-seven years have rolled by since the establishment of the Globe in Toronto. From its first appearance to the present hour, its prosperity and influence have been always advancing; but at no time has it ever before held so firmly, or so satisfactorily, the position universally conceded to it, as the leading newspaper of British America.

The improvements recently made on The Weekly Globe have immensely extended its popularity and circulation: and the publishers confidently claim that it is not only the most widely circulated Journal in British America, but that it is "the largest, the handsomest, the most carefully conducted, and the cheapest THE GLOBE PRINTING COMPANY widely circulated Journal in British America, but that it is "the largest, the handsomest, the most carefully conducted, and the cheapest weekly paper on this Continent.

During the coming year—which is likely to bring with it most important and exciting events affecting the political and material interests of the Dominion—the Editorial and News Departments will continue to be sustained with the ability and vigor that have gained for the paper its present position. A reliable summary of the Debates in the Dominion Parliament and the Provincial Legislatures will always be found in its weekly columns; and the news from all parts of the world will be published up to the latest hour of publication.

Tis glorious morn;—from height to height Shoot the keen arrows of the light; Shoo of publication.

THE AGRICULTURLAL DEPARTMENT, that has given such universal satisfaction this year and that it is acknowledged by every farmer to be alone worth the subscription price of the paper—will be maintained in more efficient staff of editors and correspondents than before.

dents than before.

"Several new and exciting tales," from the pens of popular authors, will appear during the year. No expense will be spared in securing the very latest intelligence by means of Special Telegraph Dispatches, Market Reports, Prices Current, and General Commercial Intelligence from all parts of the world, will receive unremitting attention. Every department of the paper will be maintained in the higest state of efficiency.

The tomb, the mane, the massact.

They see the vengeance fall; the chain,
The long, long age of guilt and pain:
The oxiles' thousand desperate years,
The more than groans, the more than tears:
Jerusalem a vanished name,
It's tribes earth's warning, scoff, and shame.

Still pours along the multitude;
Still rends the heavens the shout of blood;
But in the murderer' furious van,
Who totters on? A weary man:

Notwithstanding the great enlargement and improvement of the Weekly Globe that have recently been made, the subscription will continue to be only TWO DOLLARS PER ANNUM, payable always in advance—and the following will be the

But in the murderer' furious van, Who totters on? A weary man:
A cross upon his shoulders bound—His brow, his frame, one gushing wound.
What slave upon that hill must die?
What hand, what heart, in guilt imbrued, Must be the mountain-vulture's food?
There stand two victims, gaunt and bare,
Two culprit emblems of despair.
