The Gollen Inquest.

The coroner's jury on the Gollen inquest sat till midnight on Monday, hearing evidence, but the cause of the young man's death remained as much of a mystery as ever. The fact that his body was found dead beside the railway track near the station leads to the belief that he was killed by falling from a train, while the absence of a dictet would indicate that he was dedging the train hands, which means that he would have to jump off at each station, and get on again, when the car, started.
