telegram from Kirkfield to arrest Chas Snell and Ellen Snell, his wife, charged with stealing $235 from a boarding house keeper named Herman Maynes, who resdes between Kirkfield and Victoria Road. The chief was promptly at the sation on the arrival of the Coboconk deftly slipped by Mrs. Snell to a Mrs. Baeyer, who, with her husband, had arrived on the same train from Kirkfield, but she handed it over to the chief a few minutes later. Snell and his wife were lodged in the cooler, and will be brought before County Police Magistrate Deacon this week. As the evidence is of the strongest kind, they will no doubt spend the coming winter in Central prison. Baayer and his wife are at liberty, havpg agreed to appear and give evidence when called upon.

An amusing incident in connection with the administration of what some people term "justice" comes from the township of Somerville. A week or two 4go a farmer went out to inspect his Theat field and found therein a number dpigs belonging to a neighber. As the orkers had done considerable harm to s grain he was very much annoyed, d after estimating the damage at $8 he drove the pigs to the pound. The owner of the swine did not dispute the right to impound the hogs, but considered the dum for damages was unjust. The ervices of two fence viewers, as provided law, had to be called in. These forthies looked wise, examined the
