P., Pa ron member for Frontenac, has introduced bill in the House of Commons to forbid members of parliament accepting railway passes. The members have given up their whiskey in the House, but we fear they will stick to their railway passes a little longer.

Short Notes.

Mr. Perry Prentiss, Cleveland, O, sends us his neat little pamplet (price 5c.) on bi-metalism. What he treats of is gold and silver money, and tells how they may be held by mutual consent at equal value. We appreciate the man's good intent who tries to maintain milk and water at a parity of of value, but we prefer milk. To make a law requiring people to take silver in place made upon the visitors on that occasion shall special interest in giving that grand body a reception unsurpassed by any given to it in the interest of the interest in giving that grand body a reception unsurpassed by any given to it in the interest of the interest in giving that grand body a reception unsurpassed by any given to it in the interest in giving that grand body a reception unsurpassed by any given to it in the interest in giving that grand body a reception unsurpassed by any given to it in the interest in giving that grand body a reception unsurpassed by any given to it in the interest of its history of many years.
