

Tommy and Joe.

WRITTEN FOR THE CHRONICLE. "Oi s'y, Jow, this is too bloomin' time. Let's hemigrate."

"Let's try America." "I don't want to try Austrailia," said Joe. "They say dad was sent there and as 'e used to lambast me h'ld rather not meet 'im yet for a while."

"What do you say Jow. Shall we try to get work?" "I don't know Tommy work s'nt in my loine, but we might h'ak for it."

"A few words of explanation on the part of Tommy and he was soon installed to drive the bake wagon, while through the kindly influence of the baker Joe secured the position of stable boy to a retired gentleman."

"Do you know Jowy the Master said he would 'ave to kick me if I didn't get up herlier these bloomin cold mornin's, and really I can't you know."

"Wat's the use of doin' this 'ere by 'alves Jow. We must leave this p'ice in proper style. Let's do the hardware store for some knives, spoons and so forth, then when the little affair has quieted down, for we can 'ide them for a while, and then you know we have lived so bloomin' strite that no one will think of hus a doin' it."

"The regular monthly meeting of the foregoing council was held at the town hall, on Saturday. Members all present. Bevee Umphrey took the chair at 10.30 and called the council to order."

"We couldn't help the fire, you know." As they started back again with the many people, who were rushing to the burning building amid the clanging and racing of the fire engine to the scene of the conflagration, none would have suspected they knew of its origin.

Joe did not fail and securing a long plank it was quickly hoisted to the back window and Tommy was soon handing out an overcoat and suit of clothes apiece. Then followed in quick succession cans of corn, tomatoes, and salmon along with some tea and cheese."

A freight train came along when they were near a watering tank, where it had held up for a renewal of supplies and they managed to get on the bumpers unnoted. At a slow up Joe said, "Won't you be glad to get back to old Lonin again, Tommy."

Poor lads, born in sin with none to teach them better. Let us think they were both sincere in the Heaven born wish to lead better lives which they were destined never to realize.

"I wonder what was the matter with the choir Sunday evening. Their automatic tune selector does not appear to be reliable."

means the prevention of scores of cases of colds, coughs, bronchitis, pneumonia, and consumption. Wet feet do not directly make the germs of consumption appear in the lungs; but they do cause coughs and colds and inflammation of the throat and lungs; weaken the whole system. In this condition the germs of consumption find just the soil in which to work.

Scott's Emulsion of Cod-liver Oil, with Hypophosphites, is a most valuable remedy for restoring the system to health before these germs get the upper hand.

SCOTT'S EMULSION has been endorsed by the medical profession for twenty years. Ask your doctor. This is because it is always palatable—always uniform—always contains the purest Norwegian Cod-liver Oil and Hypophosphites.
