Common Affliction

Permanently Cured by Taking

A CAB-DRIVER'S STORY.

"I was afflicted for eight years with Salt Rheum. During that time, I tried a great many medicines which were highly rec-ommended, but none gave me relief. I was at last advised to try Ayer's Sarsaaccording to directions. From the Guelph Mercury. There is perhaps no business or occupation that any man could follow that is more trying to the health-particularly in the winter -- than that of moulding. A workman leaves the shop with his clothing wringing wet from perspiration, and a cold wind chills him to the marrow, making him a ready mark for lumbago, sciatica and kindred troubles. A moulder requires to be a man of more than medinary strength, and to continue at his work mus' always be in good health, for

How to Treat Wounds.

What is the proper way? Just stop place, But is there no medicine to be used? you may ask. Yes, there may be germs that have already entered the wound, and others that may get there.

We can use with advantage an antiseptic dressing, and a very effective one is pure white pulverized sugar, and as everybody has it in the house and everybody has a camphor bottle, or at least the next neighbor has, we will sprinkle some sugar on some white cotton batting and lay on the wound first before putting on the bandage. Then put on the bandage one or two thicknesses, and wet with the camphor. But why do we do all this?

Simply because the alcohol in the camphor is an antiseptic and the camphor is an anodyne and will remove the soreness.

Let entirely alone for two days. Then remove and saturate a little cotton with carbolized oil, made by mixing carbolic acid one part in twelve parts of raw lin seed oil, and wrap up again, using a clean bandage. Continue to remove and apply daily until the wound is healed. Use no water at all unless matter is formed, when a little warm water may be used with a soft rag, using just enough to remove the matter. By following the above treat ment all flesh wounds will readily heal unless they have been mangled and there is a condition present which will require the services of a competent veterinary
