Ah Greece! That noble nation, far ! That high born race of bumankind Tis wonderous in the face of war That when the other powers are blind, She should alone stand firm and true To battle for the Christian few.

I know that Greece will win! I know Tho' Gaul and Cossack powers may rave, That out of Hellas' stand will grow That independent Cretans crave Shame on the power that dares destroy That freedom all men should enjoy.

Shall Britain too with her fair name Make fast the stocks on Candias race No! No the thought with very shame Makes the hot blood surge my face. I'm British, and I could not bring Her honor to so foul a thing.

Greece once was bound, but not for long She put her would be lords to rout, And now avenging Cretan wrongs,

She spurns the tyrant aliens out ; Shall we Canadians who are free Not wish God-speed to Liberty! CHAS. MCCAUGHEY.
