Mr Thos. Condor has observed during the last century and a half that woodpeckers not only peck holes in trees in quest of grubs, but also sharpen their bills for the process by whetting them on the bark. This important ornithological fact, now given out for the first time, may set people watching the habits of birds, and no doubt many such items of scientific worth may be thereby brought to light before the nineteenth century has past into record. Item No. 2.-It may interest many inhabitants of Oshawa to know that a great battle was fought where the town now lies in the year 1705 The mill stream which runs through this town was at that time inhabited further south by several thousand mud-turtles, and north of here innumerable beavers had been operating since before the Norman conquest. Hard feelings grew up between the beavers and turtles over their respective rights, the beavers claiming preemption, and further asserting that the turtles were natives of the noon sea, and that they could not locate on inland waters without naturalization. Sir Roger de Coverley witnessed the battle which lasted 35 years, and resulted in the beavers week changing the course of the stream, thus cutting off retreat into the mud by the turtles As a result the latter were overcome, and migrated in greatly decreased numbers to Labrador. This incident is now related for the first time by a worthy descendant of Sir Roger, who still maintains the family name gates to meet in convention in Bowand wealth. Item No. 3 - No citizen of this manville on the 27th inst., to choose a town is so public s. irited as Mr Tobias Con- candidate to contest West Durham in sent, while for modesty he is celebrated. Though immensely rich in this world's goods, he never says a word about it, nor would one suppose from his conversation and writings that he had ten times encircled the earth in his travels. However, he sometimes relates to his many dear friends little incidents of his travels. On one occasion he had presented his credentials from the Empress of India to the Dinkey of Bungalore, and the great Indian ruler became greatly impressed with Mr Consent's majestic bearing, and for the want of a good interpreter mistook our worthy ctitizen for the King of Portugal, and insisted upon giving the sup- but we hear that some were planted on horses this week. posed King three of his wives, who had an average of nineteen children each. To refuse a present of a living human being from an eastern potentate is high treason, and calls for death, so Mr Consent was in ar awful pickle, until he bethought him of having the ruler informed that cholera was prevalent on board the ship he had chartered for his trip round the world. Mr. C. was afterwards favored with a message from the Dink accompanied by a wooden ox-yoke, day guest at Mr Levi Annis. which he treasures as one of the most valued of the collection of curios he secured in the cast. Item No. 4 -There are not many owners of vast acreage who make it pleasant for their tenantry as does the Hon. Thomson Conson. He knows how happy it makes a poor man to be out of debt, and in who is not expected to live. order to promote this feeling he collects his rentals promptly. On Saturday the army saaff band will be in Oshawa. They are a band of fine musicians and will render good music:

The public generally may not know it but is a fact nevertheless, that under the statute the Oshawa Railway Company can prosecute the owners of those cattle which are al lowed to feed on the roadside south of Cedar Dale. In case of an accident which resulted OSHAWA, MAY 14, 1897. In damage to the company's property or loss of life, the owners of the stock could be held responsible. The traffic to the lake will soon be on now and as a cow was run over by a heavily loaded car last summer i is not out of place to give a note of warning now before any mischief is done. If the wners of the stock do not act the railway company may be forced, in order to protect their property and the human life that is en trusted to their care, to adopt the necessary measures to secure safety. It will not cost much to keep the cattle within an enclosure, and it may cost the farm to let them run at
