Short Notes

It is a pleasant occupation for many American papers to make up and print cartoons showing the American Senate tearing up the arbitration treaty with Britain and sweeping the flinders out of the door. Why should they aim for peace, when millions of Americans believe a great war would bring good times.

As was expected, Toronto has voted in favor of Sunday cars, by 500 majority, which was much less than most people expected. All the rounders and bummers and toughs in the city are happy at last. The cry against the pulpit was very effective in winning votes for Sunday cars, and upon the whole the campaign was well handled by the winners.

Every man who takes an interest in political topics should read an article in last week's Harper's Weekly. It declares that our legislative bodies under representative government are corrupt, and that they fall far short of representing the education, religion, or morality of the people. At election time the whole cry is reform. Once the election is over every honest principle laid down is shamelessly abandoned. A legislator spends his whole time and devotes his whole study to so faring things that his seat will be permanent, and to placing all his relatives and friends in fat positions. The common people appear to be hoodwinked every time. When a campaign is on they become enthused listening to his professions and promises of candidates; but from election time to election time have the mortification of seeing that his seat was intended to bag their votes. If a supposedly honest man is sent to parliament he soon learns the tricks of the trade, and his cunning and corrupt he has become. How long will this sort of thing last?

It is to be hoped that at its June session the county council will take up the matter of a county home for the poor. This would give the council a year and a half to deal with the matter before new members are elected. A committee could be appointed during this session to enquire into the matter thoroughly and report next January. If the report were favorable and met the views of council, the committee could be empowered to either go on with the work on one of the schemes suggested, or could be allowed until another session to submit final details of the specification. There would still be six months before this council becomes dissolved, and the work could then be finished, or nearly so. The vote of the people of the county may be taken—probably will be taken—before the scheme is carried out, but there is no use in taking a vote upon a scheme of which the people know nothing. To submit the matter in such a manner means certain defeat. People have to know much to vote in favor of a thing they know nothing about, and this county has no idea of erecting an edifice costing $200,000 to $300,000, as has been done in various other counties. There will never be such an occasion here with the consent of the people unless a cheaper scheme can be offered. However, it is useless to go into details until the county council has made a move of some sort. From the previous course of County Council Arthur Johnston in this matter, we hardly expected him to let a whole session pass, as he has done, without making a move in the matter. Having done so we trust he may make amends in June.

Town Council

Met Monday night. A letter was read from D. Ormiston, solicitor, on behalf of Mrs. Gilmour, demanding $500 damages for injuries she received through being thrown from her buggy at Ormiston's corner recently. Some stones were recently placed there to fill up a washout, and Mrs. Gilmour's horse is said to have been running away when the accident occurred.

Coun. Smith read a report from the street committee in favor of making the following payments: John Bell, teaming, $3.50; John Brown, clips for road machine, $5.20; John Riley, work, $3.57; T. Connors, work, $5.75; John Bravenet, teaming, $5.75; R. Plasket, work, $1.88; John McCall, work, $13.88; Wm. Hopper, work, $13.88; Fred Poston, $1.25; Hatch & Bros. sewer pipe, $114.50. The committee also asked for power to lay an 8 inch pipe sewer from the Centre street office to the Baptist church, on Centre street. There was a long discussion on this sewer business, some councilors being of opinion that the water on Centre street should be carried north to Dundas street. The report passed.

Coun. Jackson read a report from the fire and water committee in favor of paying the following items: Smith Campbell, fixing hose for fire engine, Jos. Bandel, cleaning hose, $5. The report stated that the Electric Light Company has for a month neglected to put on two extra arc lights on streets, as ordered, and recommends that the clerk be instructed to write Messrs. Madill Bros., urging that the matter be attended to. The report passed.

Coun. Noble read a report from the relief committee in favor of paying the following accounts: Mrs. Jennings, for boarding Mrs. Rice, $1.50; A. A. medicine for R.

Bond, $1.50; Jno. Bell, hauling wood to Indigent, $2.75. There was a very long discussion over an item of 25c. for hauling a load of worthless scuffling from town sidewalks to Mrs. Stephen Coffey. Coun. Jackson said the committee had agreed to give her no more relief. Coun. Noble said she came to him with an answer having Coun. Jackson's name attached thereto. (Laughter.) Coun. Robson said the town is paying Mrs. Rice sufficient funds to keep her in luxury, with a constant supply of liquor. Coun. Hayward cast very great doubts on the story of Mrs. Rice's liquor supply. He further said that Coun. Robson kept bringing this matter up every chance he had, and that he (Hayward) understands that this is all because Mrs. Rice did not go to Coun. Robson's place to indulge in this luxurious living at the town's expense. The mayor said Mrs. Coffey is only supplied with such small amounts from this corporation that the council should not make such a noise about it. The report passed.

On motion of Reeve Pringle the first sitting of the court of revision was dated for June 1st.

On motion of Reeve Pringle the printing committee was ordered to advertise the sale of all lands in the corporation which are in three years in arrears for taxes.

On motion of Coun. Blow the committee on town property was instructed to buy a new town flag before May 24th.

Now for the story. It was 10:45 p.m. when the reve moved to read a by-law. Coun. Scott rose and moved to adjourn, but only himself and Coun. Crosby and Robson stood for it. So the by-law was read and turned out to be a corker. The present town by-law to regulate the running at large of live stock is very defective, as we pointed out last week, and the reve has gone over clause by clause and drafted a series of amendments. The first was one to prevent more than one cow running from each family. The by-law said each resident might run one cow. The new by-law made it read each resident household.

The next clause was to change the time for letting cows out in the morning from 5 to 6 o'clock. Next it was proposed to make the owners of cows impounding at night pay 50 cents to the party who drives them to pound, as well as the 50 cents poundage fees. Deputy Scott and Coun. Robson had fought long and long against the other clauses, and had been downed at the point of the sword. But when this double fee was imposed each of them tried to have a fit, but failed. They stormed, they roared, they talked incessantly, no matter who had the floor. It was only when Coun. Smith related an exciting battle he had with a flock of geese at Bayside, in which he wounded one with a shotgun, and the two warlike councilors could be hushed for a moment. Taking advantage of the lull thus caused, Coun. Jackson tried to relate how the critter got into his back yard and left evidence of its visit knee deep on the well platform and around the back door. Deputy Scott wants no legislation to regulate cows, and neither he nor Coun. Robson would support anything brought up by Reeve Pringle, but the other four who have been in the compact with them to obstruct business appeared to be drifting away on this question, leaving the two of them "naked to their enemies," as Shakespeare observes. Nothing but desperate measures on their part would suffice for such a crisis, and when the reve went on to read how cows could be held by the poundkeeper in default of payment, flesh and blood revolted against the iniquity of the proceeding. Deputy Scott rose and went to interview Coun. Robson as to what should be done, and they secretly devised a plan to rise as one man and leave the room, when the council took a vote what Coun. Robson was making his fourth or fifth speech on the subject of whether or not a cow is farrow year after year until she has further offspring. To be thus interrupted whilst discussing learnedly the geneology of a cow, was the last straw. Their moment had come. A period in history must be made. Deputy Scott and Coun. Robson rose and marched out of the chamber. Silence deep as death prevailed as with measured stride they bore down upon the door. It was like the march of the Cameron men. As the door closed on the two doughty councilors the mayor heaved a sigh suggestive of a gasp, and the other members echoed it as soon as they could catch their breath. Then the avowal in the absence of her friends, and the by-law was passed speedily, the council adjourning at midnight.

May Day Festival
A large number of visitors assembled in the gymnasium of the collegiate institute last Friday to witness the crowning of the May Queen. All the members of the staff, some of the trustees and ministers of the town attended while the pupils were on hand, in honor of the occasion. It was a very pleasant and interesting hour was spent. Miss Florence Ross had the honor of being chosen Queen, and Mr. Walter Shaw had the equal honor of being crowned "Dux" by their fellow pupils. Mr. Waugh, the principal, presided gracefully and efficiently, made a few suitable introductory remarks, and then called upon Mr. Tamblin to address the meeting. After Mr. Tamblin had expressed his approval of the day and May Queen celebrations, the pleasure he had in them in past years, and had wished success to the collegiate institute, the Queen, the Dux, and their attendants marched in. Miss Bertha L. Tamblin, the Queen of 1896, had the honor of placing the crown on Miss Ross' head. Then addresses were made to the Queen and the Dux by other pupils. The Queen proceeded to read a paper, which was very well indeed. Then followed addresses by Messrs. Abraham Bralpine, Manning, Smith, Burns, King, Ferguson, Brown, Pringle and Annis. The proceedings were interspersed with vocal and instrumental music, and readings, and ended with the planting of the tree by Miss Ross. Mr. E. Hare represented the ex-Dux, Mr. R. Stewart. The assistants were Misses McTaggart, Monday Fletcher, Oshawa, Corryell, Barnes, and Messrs. Bradly, Adams, Rogers and Stephenson, representing the respective forms. Warden King, Reeve Pringle, Ex-Mayor Smith, Principal Brown, Trustees Ferguson and Burns, and Messrs. Annes and B. Davey were present.

Omibus Troubles.

The keen competition between bus men has frequently assumed a suggestive of open war, but something shed has been attempted so far. On last, however, the drivers had a race, started on Brock street south, just after turning north off the baseline. Thompson was ahead driving Newrig, while Wm. Sturgess on McGear brought up the rear, but was bound the lead. As soon as they turned baseline to come up Brock street Sturgess cracked on the whip and crowded Sturgess, however, managed to draw even, and then he proceeded to drive. He would have gone ahead, only the riggers were so close that his hub caught the hub of Newport's hack, and the riggers thus locked the nut on the McGear's axle. This took the life out of Newport's wheel off at the hub ends, while the chief constable and Mr. A. M. who were in Newport's cab, had water for a chance to jump out, but they could not without incurring work than staying in. They had also to vainly Thompson to pull up and let them go ahead. Both drivers were to and it would be a good idea for the travelling public if some arrangement could be made with the owners of the tending bus lines to fight out their claim in some other way than that which is a danger life. Otherwise passengers will prefer walking to riding.
