ACCEPTS THE NOMINATION.

Mr Calder, in accepting the nomination expressed himself gratified at becoming the unamious choice of the South Ontario Conservatives and thanked the convention for the confidence they had reposed in him.

Lieut Col Sam Hughes, M.P., followed and predicted a substantial victory for Mr Calder over Mr John Dryden when the contest came, and Mr Calders record as a councillor was pointed out as highly creditable to himself and advantageous to the county. He reminded them that hard work was to be done if they would win. Mr John Dryden had been in office so long that a glamour had sur rounded him which blinded the eyes of his supporters to his defects. There were, he said, severa men in the riding and on the platform, who would make quite as good a Minister of Agriculture as Mr Dryden did, nor was be admitting Mr Drydens abilities in making that state-

At this juncture Mr Whitney entered the hall in company with Dr Willoughby and Mr Smith, ex. M.P., and was greeted with ringing cheers.

Colonel Hughes, in conclusion, referred to the wasteful timber policy of the Government, and gave some good advice from a wide experience in conducting campaigns as to the best methods to be pursued if the Conservatives of South Ontario would win success,

Wm Smith ex M.P, said it had been charged against him that he had talked too much at the last meeting of the association. They all knew the particulars of a lawsuit which Mr Dryden had epter ed against him which had not been withdrawn because of any love Mr Dryden felt for him. Would not say much about Mr Dryden to day, but before the cam paign was over intends taking an active part in bringing about the ministers defeat. Does not see any need for Conservatives to attack Mr Dryden just now, as the Hon gentlemans own party is after him hot enough. The Conservatives never had so good an opportunity of beating Mr Dryden as stands in prospect for

Mr Calder just now. Dr Willoughby was next called. He has a stutter and it was worse than usual. He said the Grits had been in pow er 25 years and have held on by organiz ing an unconquerable machine. There were only 500 office holders in the province when Sir Oliver Mowat started; there are now over 8000. Sir Oliver set up a series of admirable principles at the start but had violated every one of them and for the last two years has been cast ing about in all directions to get hold of offices which he previously declared should be abolished. How to Construct "Hoards Model" Cow Stall.

After three winters thorough trial, I know of no style of cow fastening that can excel the "Hoards model stall" for comfort, cleanliness and cheapness of construction. We built our stalls almost entirely out of lumber taken from all an old barn. In constructing the stalls, first the floor is laid for the cow to stand on. This is made-for cows of ordinary size-8 ft. long, with a slant of about 1 inch toward the drop. I have for years been afflicted with On the high end of this floor erect 4catarrh of the bladder and diabetes. My inch scantlings, to which is nailed the urine on standing for a while would be- solid board partition, 4 ft. high, on the come absolutely jellified from an extra- side next the cow. Should this fail to hold water. or leak at the joints, take strips of lath and tack along the bottom on the inside, about 14 inch from the sides, and fill in the groove with hot coal tar. At joints, where ends of side plank come together, tack strips of leather up and down loosely over the joint and fill in with the hot tar.

This watering trough we consider a valuable addition to the "Hoard" stall. We have two of these troughs in use, over 60 feet long, through which the water runs from fall till spring, giving good satisfaction.

Having put the trough in position. next raise to place the plank which is to serve as the bottom of the feedto inches wide so as to extend over partition 30 inches from the floor, should be guarded against. A few weeks ago in passing through Vincennes, Indiana, I had to wait an hour or two at the Union Depot for the north bound train, and in looking around I saw a sign in gilt (guilt) letters: "Bar," and I thought:

Bar to manhoods high estate To bonor, grandeur-all thats great, By what is sold within. Bar to friendship, home and joy, A bar that ruins many a boy Estranging him from kith and kin.

A bar to strength, a bar to health, A bar to greatness, fame and wealth, A bar to peace of mind, A bar that shuts within the vile. And seeks the thoughtless to beguile-That shuts out good of every kind,

This bar is built by law with skill, Is built by those who know twill kill. "It brings a revenue." Its work is ruin, pain and woe, We see it everywhere we go, Opposing all thats good and true.

This bar is built by those who pray, "Thy kingdom come" from day to day, Then vote to have it stay away. If votes and prayers must go apart Then pray for bars and vote for hearts Made sad by Rums dark sway.

The unbelieving man who votes To tear down bars and peal out notes Of victory for right. Is better far than be who claims To trust in Jesus precious name Then votes to license liquors blight.

Lets rise above our party ties,
And fix our hopes beyond the skies,
Vote and pray to bets break down;
And then when ends our earthly state, Weil gather with the good and great To gain a starry grown.
