MILTON, JUNE 17, 1886

NOVA SCOTIA ELECTIONS.

The Provincial elections on Tuesday in Nova Scotia resulted in the previously large Liberal majority becoming an overwhelming one. The House consists of 38 members. In the former House the Liberals numbered about 23 including the Speaker. In the newly-elected House the Liberals appear to have 29 seats out of the 38. There are several seats as to which, the result is doubtful, and when the facts are known it may turn out that the Liberals have even a larger majority than three to one.

THE SPEC. APOLOGIZES.

(Hamilton Spectator, June 15th.)

The Spectator has done injustice to Scott Act Inspector Brothers of Milton, and hastens to make reparation. The Spectator said that Mr. Brothers had said that he knew of "many" places in Milton where liquor was sold. A trustworthy Milton correspondent, whose letter appears elsewhere in this paper, points out the fact that Mr. Brothers did not say that; but that he said that he knew of "twelve" places where liquor was sold. The difference between "many" and "twelve" will be recognized at a glance, and those who have acquired the erroneous "many" idea from the Spectator will please correct themselves and remember the proper figure. It is perhaps unnecessary to say that the Spectator regrets very much having misrepresented Mr. Brothers' statement.

South Wentworth.

A convention of the South Riding of Wentworth was held at the Reform rooms, Hamilton, on Saturday last. There was a large attendance. Mr. James Doran, of Grimsby, was chairman. Mr. Dickenson said the meeting had been called on account of Dr. Springer's announcement that he would not again be a candidate for the riding. Mr. Springer, being called on, said that for personal and business relations he could not again be a candidate, but he thought a Reformer could be elected to succeed him. For his part he would heartily support the nominee of the convention. Mr. Joseph Rymal, ex-M.P., addressed the convention in a very able speech. Nominations were then called for. Mr. Joseph Rymal and Dr. Russell, of Binbrook, were nominated. Mr. Rymal retired, and Dr. Russell was declared the unanimous choice of the convention.

An Expensive Law.

The county council has voted $666.67 for the enforcement of the Scott Act in the centre riding of this county. Under a recent Act passed by the Local Legislature it appears to be imperative on county councils to vote two-thirds of the amount estimated by the license commissioners for the enforcement of the Act, and the Ontario Government pays the other third. The money must be deposited in a chartered bank to the credit of the commissioners and paid to their order as required. There does not appear to be any check on the manner in which the money is to be used, nor are the commissioners or inspectors responsible to any person for the discharge of their duties in respect to it. It is only necessary for the commissioners of the north and south ridings to apply for and receive a similar amount from the county council at its next sitting—thus the taxpayers of the county, in addition to the reductions of taxes on hotel property, and the loss of the amount of licenses received under the former system, will be compelled to pay in round numbers $1,999.99 direct, as well as their proportion of $999.99 paid by the Ontario Government for the luxury of basking under the benign influence of the Scott Act for one year.—Arthur Enterprise.

Funeral of the Victims.

BELFAST, June 12.—The scenes attending the burial of the victims of the recent riots were very affecting. Women wailed and men sobbed. The crowds along the funeral routes were the largest seen here for many years. There was no disorder. The police and military stood in pretty close file all the way with loaded rifles. The public have subscribed liberally to defray the expenses of the funerals. The money raised has already proved sufficient to buy the graves needed by each family and leave a handsome balance, which will be divided among the needy relatives of the dead. A number of the rioters have already been convicted and sentenced to various terms of imprisonment, one to seven months at hard labor. It is rumoured here the government intends to disarm the people of Belfast. Troops continue to arrive in large numbers. Their presence indicates that the authorities fear more troublous times ahead.

The coroner's jury in the case of Mary Reilly, one of the victims of the recent riots, to-day returned a verdict of wilful murder against the police who fired into the mob at the Bowers Hill station.

Protest by "The Boy."

Mr. James Beaty, M. P., who has been at Ottawa ever since the close of the session, left last Friday for New York. He complains that the Cabinet Ministers have not stood by him as they should in his North-west Railway scheme, and threatens to make matters warm for some of his political friends before he will consent to be made a scapegoat. An effort is being made to organize a new company, composed of Senator Clemow, Mr. Alex. Macdonald (the former contractor for the road), Captain Murray, of St. Catharines, Mr. George Goodwin, of Ottawa, Mr. Havey, (Mr. Onderdonk's engineer), to build the North-west Railway.

Suicide of a King.

On Sunday evening King Ludwig of Bavaria went out into the park of Berg Castle with Dr. VanGridden to take a walk, and not returning up to a late hour a search was made, when both were found drowned in the lake. It is supposed the king leaped in to commit suicide, and his medical attendant was drowned while attempting to rescue him.

The New Parliament Buildings.

A Tronto despatch says: Mr. Waite, architect, Buffalo, whose plans for the new Parliament buildings were accepted by the Ontario Government, will be here next month to supervise the drawing up of the contracts for the carrying out of the work, which will then be immediately proceeded with.

THE G. O. R.'S MANIFESTO.

MR. GLADSTONE APPEALS TO THE ELECTORS OF MIDLOTHIAN.

LONDON, June 18.—Mr. Gladstone has issued the following manifesto to the electors of Midlothian:

"Gentlemen: In consequence of the defeat of the bill for the better government of Ireland, the ministry advised and Her Majesty was pleased to sanction the dissolution of parliament for a decision by the nation of the gravest and likewise the simplest issue that has been submitted to it for half a century.

"It is only a sense of the gravity of this issue which induces me at a period of life when nature cries aloud for repose, to seek, after sitting in thirteen parliaments, a seat in the fourteenth and with this view to solicit for the fifth time the honor of your confidence.

"At the last election I endeavored in my addresses and speeches to impress upon you the fact that a great crisis had arrived in the affairs of Ireland. Weak as the late government was for ordinary purposes, it had great advantages for dealing with that crisis. A comprehensive measure proceeding from that government would have received warm and extensive support from the Liberal party, and would probably have closed the Irish controversy within the present session and have left the parliament of 1885 free to prosecute the now stagnant work of ordinary legislation, with the multitude of questions it includes. My earnest hope was to support the late cabinet in such a course of policy.

"On January 26 last the opposite policy of coercion was declared to have been the choice of the government, the Earl of Carnarvon alone refusing to share in it. The Irish question was thus placed in the foreground to the exclusion of every other. The hour as all felt was come, the only point remaining to determine was the manner in which it was to be dealt with.

"In my judgment the proposal of coercion was not justified by facts and was doomed to certain and disgraceful failure. Some method of governing Ireland other than coercion ought, as I thought, to be sought for and to be found. Therefore, I viewed with regret the fall of the late cabinet, and when summoned by Her Majesty to form a new one I undertook it on the basis of an anti-coercion policy with the fullest explanations to those whose aid I sought as colleagues, when I proposed to examine whether it might not be possible to grant Ireland a domestic legislature and maintain the honor and consolidate the unity of the Empire. A government was formed and the work was at once put in hand.

"You will now, gentlemen, understand how and why it is that the affairs of Ireland, and not for the first time, have thrust aside every other subject and adjourned our hopes of useful and progressive legislation. As a question of the first necessities of social order it forces itself into the van.

"The late cabinet though right in giving that place, were, as we thought, wrong in their manner of treating it. It was our absolute duty in taking the government if we did not adopt their method, to propose another. Thus, gentlemen, it is that this great and simple issue has come upon you and demands your decision. Will you govern Ireland by coercion, or will you let Ireland manage her own affairs?

"To debate in this address this and that detail of the lately defeated bill would only be to disguise this issue, and would be as futile as to discuss the halting, stumbling, ever-shifting and ever-vanishing project of an intermediate class which have proceeded from the seceding Liberals.

"There are two clear, positive intelligible plans before the world—there is the plan of Lord Salisbury. Our plan is that Ireland under well considered conditions, transact her own affairs. His plan is to ask Parliament to renew repressive laws and enforce them resolutely for twenty years, by the end of which time he assures us Ireland will be fit to accept any government in the way of a local government on the repeal of the coercion laws you may wish to give her. I leave this Tory project to speak for itself in its unadorned simplicity, and I turn to the proposed policy of the government.

"Our opponents, gentlemen, whether Tories or seceders, have assumed the name of Unionists. I deny them the title to it. In intention, indeed, we are all Unionists alike, but the union they refuse to modify is in its present shape a paper union obtained by force and fraud, and never sanctioned or accepted by the Irish nation. They are not Unionists, but paper Unionists. True union is to be tested by the sentiments of the human beings united. Tried by this criterion we have less union between Great Britain now than we have had under the settlement of 1782.

"Enfranchised Ireland, gentlemen, asks through her lawful representatives for the revival of her domestic legislature—not, on the face of it, an innovating, but a restorative proposal. She urges with truth that the centralization of parliament, has been the division of peoples. But she recognizes the fact that the union, lawlessly as it was obtained, cannot and ought not to be repealed. She is content to receive her legislature in a form divested of prerogatives, which might have impaired her imperial interests, and better adapted than the settlement of 1782 to secure her regular control of her own affairs. She has not repelled but has welcomed the stipulations for the protection of the minority.

"To such provisions we have given and shall give careful heed, but I trust Scotland will condemn the attempts so singularly made to impart into the controvery a venomous element of religious bigotry. Let her take warning by the deplorable riots in Belfast and other places in the north.

Among the benefits, gentlemen, I anticipate from your acceptance of our policy are these:—The consolidation of the united empire and great addition to its strength; the stoppage of the heavy, constant, and demoralizing waste of the public treasure; the abatement and gradual extinction of ignoble feuds in Ireland, and that development of her resources which experience shows to be a natural consequence of free and orderly government; the redemption of the honour of Great Britain from the stigma fastened upon her almost from time immemorial; the respect of Ireland by the judgment of the whole civilized world; and, lastly, the restoration of Parliament to its dignity and efficiency, and the regular progress of the business of the country.

"Well, gentlemen, the first question I now put to you is: How shall Ireland be governed? There is another question behind it and involved in it: How are England and Scotland to be governed?

"You know how for the last six years especially, the affairs of England and Scotland have been impeded and your Imperial Parliament disorganized and disabled. All this happened while the Nationalists were but a small minority of the Irish members, without support from so much as a handful of members not Irish. Now they approach ninety and are entitled to say, We are speaking the views of the Irish nation. It is impossible to deal with this subject by half measures. They are strong in their numbers, strong in British support, which brought 318 members to vote for their country, strongest of all in the sense of being right.

"But, gentlemen, we have done our part, the rest remains for you. Electors of the county, may you be able to see through and cast away all delusions; refuse evil and choose good.

"I have the honor to be, gentlemen, your faithful and grateful servant.

W. E. GLADSTONE."

SCOTT ACT.

The following letters appeared in the Hamilton Spectator of June 9th and 15th respectively:

Inspector Brothers' Denial.

TO THE EDITOR.—Although I receive the Spectator daily I missed Inspector Brothers' letter of June 9. It has just been pointed out to me, and the statements therein contained are so notoriously misleading, that in the interests of truth, I am constrained to write to you the exact facts.

1. Inspector Brothers denies having said that he "knows of many places in Milton where liquor is sold."

In this he is technically correct, yet his denial is misleading. When under license Milton had three or four licensed taverns, it is now asserted that at least seventeen people sell liquor from time to time. Hearing of this fact, one of the newly appointed license commissioners, in the discharge of his duties, officially asked Inspector Brothers if he was aware of the state of affairs here. The Inspector then vouched to the aforesaid commissioner that he "knew of only twelve places in Milton where liquor is sold." Now, this statement of the inspector to the commissioner was reported in our excellent local papers here, and, although Brothers has a paper of his own, he has never yet undertaken to deny the statement because he dare not where the facts are so well known. Your readers will have their own opinion of the reliability of Brothers when they notice that his denial simply changes the figures "12" for the word "many" and hangs his denial thereupon.

2. He charges the anti-Scott papers with deliberately lying in order to bolster up their cause, and with ridiculing the officer of the law (himself.) It is quite sufficient to say that a lie injures the teller thereof more than anyone else, and that knowing this the anti-Scott papers of this town have never resorted to a means which would ultimately recoil upon themselves in opposing this notoriously unjust, tyrannical and unchristian law. As for ridiculing Brothers, ll leave it to yourself or any of your readers if a good officer, one suited for the duties he has to perform, has not always commanded respect, even from those who oppose his principles. A case in point is in police magistrate Saunders of Guelph—a gentleman whom to name in the same connection with Young and Brothers of this county is an insult to him. The fact is, the freakish conduct of Brothers, has caused the ridicule he seems to feel so much. Then his conduct is so utterly inconsistent that it would, as the vulgar have it, make a horse laugh. He has a paper of his own. He has sought by the plentiful use of abuse and intemperate language to hound down every person opposed to the law he supports and out of which he seeks to make money. The editors of the CHAMPION in Milton have opposed the Scott Act. Brothers has led a foul conspiracy to take from them the offices of county clerk and county treasurer respectively, and this on the ground that their opinion do not conform with those of former majorities in this county. If Brothers were a consistent man in thus urging their dismissal, he would not hold a newspaper and the inspectorship—the salary of the latter to be paid by the county, although the county had no say in appointing him.

3. He asserts that the Scott Act is not only popular, but that it is doing good. Hardly any statement could better show his unreliability. The statement is utterly false, and I here make the assertion, well knowing that it will not be overthrown, that during the four years the act has been in force in Halton not one drunkard has been reclaimed through the Scott Act. If Brothers knows of one he has been very careful never to let any person know of such conversion from evil habits. As a showing of his unreliability, I may mention the following episode which occurred during a recent Scott Act trial at Oakville. After Brothers had done swearing, and had descended from the witness box, he, in order to influence the court, said in answer to sworn evidence that Sanderson had never received a doctor's order to use beer or porter during his recent sickness, and that the doctor had told him so. He expressed his ability to swear to this assertion. The counsel for the defense promptly put Brothers again in the witness box; but he did not swear to the statement he had made to influence the court. Counsel gave him a well deserved castigation for his ungentlemanly and wicked conduct, and can you wonder, I ask, that such officers of the law (save the mark) are subjects of ridicule? As I have already said, if Brothers were a good officer he would command respect. In conclusion let me say that he is unworthy of notice; we pay no attention to him here, and the general impression here is that he sought admission to your columns because the small circulation of his own paper does not extend to him the chance to air his craving for notoriety sufficiently.

Milton, June 14. ONE WHO KNOWS.

Inspector Brothers Denies It.

TO THE EDITOR: In your issue of to-day you say regarding the Scott Act that inspector Brothers says he knows of many places in Milton where liquor is sold. I never said this. There is only a small quantity of intoxicating liquor sold or consumed in this county compared to what there was during license. You should be careful of your facts before making statements of this kind as your article will reach many people that my letter will not. There are some continually on the lookout for statements of this kind to use who never come or even send to Halton for facts. It has been the policy of the anti-Scott organs to not only deliberately lie about the Scott Act but by every means in their power to ridicule the action of the officers whose duty it is to enforce the law. Just imagine what the result would be if the Spectator ridiculed continually the actions of magistrate Cahill, the inspector of licenses or any other officer of the law. Do you think this would produce respect of the law by the law-breakers if they knew there was a newspaper advocating their cause? In spite of this, the Scott Act is not only popular but is doing good. It would carry again with a larger majority than before. We have had some wine and beer men in the county lecturing at different times who told the people that the Scott Act was no good, but they came from Toronto. They were really representing the brewers. It is peculiar that one of our whiskey organs in particular has never published the town assessment or any other facts that would indicate prosperity in the county, if they could help it.

W. D BROTHERS, Inspector.
