

CFTV34 revives gothic horror

CFTV34 community focus television is bringing back old movies freshly packaged with new hosts. If you were scared by Shock Theatre, in love with the beautiful sultry voice of Vampira, or laughed at the Ghoul and entertained by Sir Graves Ghastly, this new series of films is for you.

CFTV'S Friday Night Creep Show debuted on Halloween with the Michael Rennie classic, The Day the Earth Stood Still, and will settle in at 9 p.m. each Friday. The show is hosted by the Ghoul Father, played by Ted Mastronardi, and the Fun Ghoul casted to Eusebio Fortuna. The show's executive producer is Tony Vidal. Make-up is under the direction of Samantha Mastronardi, a student at Ruthven Public School.

Jingle Bell Run ushers in holiday season

The 2006 Jingle Bell Run, Walk and Wheel will ring in the holiday season for the eleventh year in a row on Sunday, Nov. 19.

Hosted by Ken Knapp Ford in Essex, the run promotes physical fitness and community spirit, while raising thousands of dollars for Community Living Essex County in support of over 500 people with an intellectual disability.

The honorary chair of the 2006 steering committee is, once again, Essex resident Ray Jerome. As a person with an intellectual disability, Ray knows first-hand how important Community Living Essex County is to individuals and families throughout Essex County. In addition to providing a full range of supports so that people can live production and meaningful lives, Community Living Essex County works towards educating the public and promoting accessible communities.

The Jingle Bell Run features a five-kilometre run/walk, or a 10-kilometre run, and attracts an interesting and enthusiastic mix of people. As a "points" event for Walkers and Runners Across the County of Essex, the event allows athletes to compete for medals alongside those who simply challenge themselves to compete the route, or others out for a brisk walk with family and friends.

An awards ceremony and silent auction follows the run.

Early registration takes place until Nov. 13. For more information, contact Tony DeSantis at 776-6483, ext. 246 or visit www.communitylivingessex.org.
