One Hundred and fifty years ago, Oakville founding father William Chisholm paid $4,116 for 960 acres of land around the mouth of the Sixteen Mile Creek. In the pages of this special Salute to Oakville edition, the Journal Record looks at the town as it is today and some of the historical highlights of Oakville since it was incorporated as a municipality of 2,000 residents on March 27, 1857. We would like to thank the Oakville Historical Society, the Bell Canada Telephone Historical Foundation, Sheridan College and Ford Canada for the photos which they have generously provided. Material for the From Our Files series is taken from the Old Oakville series written by the late P. W. Thompson, a former Journal Record reporter.

We believe in the future

We're confident about the future... the future of Oakville, of Canada, and of our own company.

Since our arrival in Oakville five years ago, we have expanded our operations steadily to meet the needs of industry all across Canada for environmental protection.

Our business is the environment. We manufacture dust collectors and electrostatic precipitators which prevent air pollution in all types of industry. Steel mills, foundries, cement plants, chemical plants, mines and metal refineries, to name a few. And we supply equipment for the cleaning of metals and other materials.

At Wheelabrator Corp. of Canada Ltd., we pride ourselves on the contribution we have made to the quality of life of countless communities across Canada.
