Andrew Dale, Georgetown Was Speaker At Meeting Of Oakville Liberal Club

Declared Liberals Are Just As Loyal To Crown As The Conservatives

LARGE ATTENDANCE

Business Session Was Held Previous To Address By Mr. Dale

Speaking before a large attendance of members, Andrew Dale, Georgetown, vice-president of the Halton Liberal and Progressive Association, told the Oakville and District Liberal Association, Wednesday night, that Liberals were just as loyal as Conservatives, in spite of the flag waving done by the other party in political campaigns.

"The Conservatives would have the people believe that Liberals were not as loyal to the Crown as they themselves are. We have been Liberals in our family for 150 years. In 1783 my family came to this country from the United States. They gave up their possessions to come and live under the British flag. I don't think there are any stancher Liberals."

"We shouldn't have to bear any stigma about the loyalty of the Liberal party."

Mr. Dale emphasized this point in making reference to the death of King George, charging that the Liberal party was too often painted as not being loyal to the Crown.

"You have often heard the reference to Premier Mackenzie King's forbears, when people say William Lyon Mackenzie was a rebel. If you read your English history and go back to the days of King John, you will find that the people arose under the nobles and told the King they wanted things changed. This led to the Magna Charta. In the time of Mackenzie, things were being run by the Family Compact, a small group of people who had control of everything. The people had to rise up and say they wanted things changed."

"After the 1837 rebellion Lord Durham was sent out to this country, and the things were granted for

CARPETBALL GAMES

In the carpetball games played in the Town Carpet Bowling League, Wednesday night, the Oddfellows defeated Fire Department by a score of 240 to 216, and A.O.F. defeated St. Andrew's. The secretary of the league had not been furnished with the official score for the latter game up to the time of going to press.

A league standing will be published in next week's issue of "Your Community Newspaper."

Oakville Lads Handed Varsity Twelfth Defeat

Played Superior Hockey To Win Easy Victory Over The Collegians

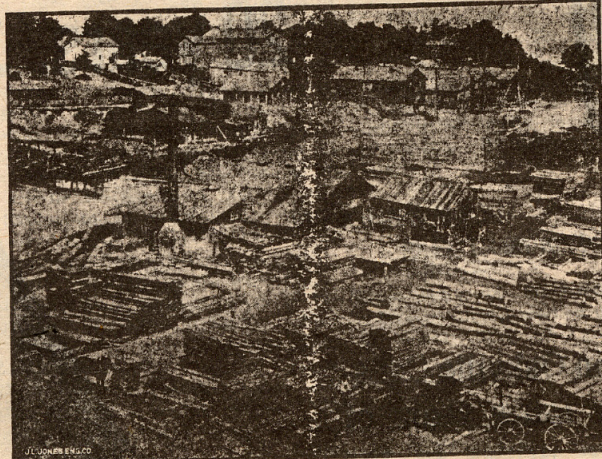

FRIDAY NIGHT

University of Toronto's senior hockey hopes received their 12th defeat of the season at the hands of Oakville Villans, Friday night, at the Maple Leaf Gardens. The final score was 6 to 4 in favor of the lake-shore hockeyists.

The game provided a good practise for the third-place team, who exerted just enough pressure to hold the lead, and for the greater part of the game allowed the students to do plenty of skating.

The first counter was made by "Sonny" Townsley, on an assist by Percy Allen, and was followed shortly afterwards by Marzo's solo effort. Townsley and Peer scored in the second period, while U. of T. managed to tally when Jeffrey accepted McClelland's pass. Sissons, Lenahan and Ripley scored for Varsity in the third period, while Campbell and Peer drove in two for good measure for Oakville.

HISTORICAL OAKVILLE

This week's picture is what we term "our mystery picture." We believe it is a lumberyard which was located on the banks of the Sixteen-Mile Creek, where the Yacht Club now stands. Readers are invited to enlighten us on the identity of the above picture.

Lumbering was at one time one of the big industries of Oakville. The surrounding district was noted for white oak, and it is therefore not unusual to find sailing vessels built in Oakville shipyards with an "Oak" in the name, or to find that the name "White Oak" is being continued in a social club and an I.O.D.E. chapter. Undoubtedly the piles of lumber pictured above contain a quantity of the wood for which Oakville was famous. Lack of forest conservation is indicated in the fact that white oak around Oakville is now as scarce as the proverbial hens' teeth.

Played Games With King When He Was But A Boy An Oakville Lady Recalls

HENRY HEATH

Mrs. E. Robson of Oakville has the distinction of being one of the few persons, if not the only one, in Canada, who can safely lay claim to the honor of having played with King Edward VIII when he was but a very small boy.

Mrs. Robson was engaged on the household staff of the Duke and Duchess of Fife at London, when members of the Royal family visited there on various occasions. In the performance of her duties it was necessary for Mrs. Robson to occasionally take trays to the nursery, and it was during these visits that England's future King revealed that

Frank Heath, of Oakville, has received word of the death of his father, Henry Heath, at Banbury, England, and is in receipt of a copy of the "Banbury Guardian," which published the following obituary:

A well-known and much respected resident of Bloxham passed away on Friday in the person of Mr. Henry Heath at the age of 80. Mr. Heath was born in Bloxham and he never resided out of the village. He was a

Citizens Unable To Gain Admittance At Memorial Service Held In Theatre

DRIVER CONVICTED

Arthur Callaghan, St. Catharines, driver of the transport which collided with a parked truck on Colborne street, Jan. 15th, was convicted in Magistrate's Court, Friday, before Magistrate W. E. McIlveen.

Callaghan told the court he remembered nothing from the time he passed the speeding sign at the entrance to Oakville, until he struck the truck on Colborne street. He was fined $14.50 and his license cancelled for one week.

Intermediates Again Defeated By Acton Team

Overtime Period Was Necessary To Decide Contest In Visitors Favor

FAST HOCKEY

In a fast, hectic overtime battle, Acton hockey intermediates handed Oakville a 3-2 defeat at the local arena, Monday night.

The ice literally steamed as the players on both teams scorched the ice in an effort to score deciding counters. Speedy Oakville rushes were checked behind Acton's blue line and the play rapidly moved back to Oakville's end of the arena. The teams appeared to be more evenly matched than on the occasion of their previous meeting in Oakville, and the handful of fans who braved the sub-zero weather were treated to one of the best games played in the local arena this season.

Larry Wilson's flip from near centre ice which resulted in the puck making contact with the red light was the signal for the Oakville fans to really turn on their vocal support, and from that time until the end of

Rev. C. K. Nicoll Gave Touching Address On Death Of King George

Many citizens were turned away from the Gregory Theatre, Tuesday morning, when Oakville joined with the rest of the empire in memorial services for the late King George V.

People were waiting to gain admittance before the doors opened, and the theatre had only been opened a short time before it was filled to capacity, every available seat being taken and the crowd overflowing to the entrance doors.

Rev. J. W. Magwood was in charge of the service, while the memorial address was given by Rev. C. K. Nicoll, minister of Knox Presbyterian Church.

"Today there is a great brooding over the British Empire," said Mr. Nicoll.

"An empire today mourns the passing of the King. It is right and fitting that we as a community should meet today in memory of King George who was dearly beloved by all. We think of how last year our Majesty was allowed to participate in the silver jubilee celebration. I believe that this demonstration touched His Majesty more than anything else. Perhaps in the history of the British empire there has never been a ruler more loved by the empire as King George was by the people. He knew his people so intimately and so well.

"Those of you who were overseas will recall the visits of the King to the front where he looked over the conditions through which men were going. Many times during the years he passed through the streets of his towns and cities and he knew how the people were living, how they were suffering and how they were dying.

"We think of our late Majesty as a devoted husband, a kind father and a loving grandparent.

"One incident that touched me most was during the past Christmas
